Country muster delights

By Jessica McGrath

Country music fans like Ron and Lesty welcomed back the long-awaited Murgon Music Muster.

The Biggenden pair eagerly returned last week for their third muster at Murgon after the popular event had a long break during the covid-19 pandemic.

Ceremonies cut

By Euan Morrisson

A chance to save money and move forward as a region has seen the council's Australia day ceremonies change.

The North Burnett Regional Council voted to change their Australia Day award ceremonies and events for next year.

The changes were voted on at the last council meeting held at Mt Perry on 26 October.

The resolution was carried 4/3.

Some of the changes include Council deciding to hold their regional citizenship and regional Australia Day awards at one location that will rotate throughout the region from year-to-year.

Some other changes include cutting the number of regional awards down from nine to seven awards, and the addition of the 'Local Legend' award.

The 'Local legend' award will be issued to someone from each community of Biggenden, Gayndah, Mount Perry, Mundubbera, Eidsvold and Monto.

North Burnett Regional Council Mayor Les Hotz said the awards are a time to celebrate and acknowledge those outstanding individuals and organisations that have made a significant contribution to our region.

Two-unit build

Two social housing units will be built in Kingaroy after the successful partnership between the South Burnett Regional Council, Regional Housing Limited and the Queensland Government.

This follows a December 2021 Council decision to supply four blocks of land to help with the housing shortage.

South Burnett Regional Councillor for division four, Kirstie Schumacher said while the region was no stranger to housing challenges, the current situation was not good.

"Never before have we seen such a dire housing shortage," Cr Kirstie Schumacher said.

"While it's wonderful to see our region experience population growth, we know that business is struggling to house their workforces and that this is having a direct impact on our community.

"Right now, in the South Burnett, we know there are more than 180 people sleeping rough, and many of us have seen the unacceptable circumstances whereby local families are forced to live in tents and cars in our public spaces.

"Now more than ever we need more bricks-and-mortar outcomes and to continue working on the multi-faceted solutions needed to address the housing challenges.

"We've been working with South Burnett CTC, QShelter and Regional Housing for some time now, and share in their passion and commitment to helping to house vulnerable people in our community.

"These two social housing units are a positive step, but the work is far from done. We are committed to doing everything we can as a local government to help unlock more housing solutions.

"Our priority is to continue working together with all key stakeholders to explore possible practical solutions and ensure that every level of government is at the table.

"I'm heartened to know two more families will have somewhere safe to sleep because of the work we've been doing and thank the team for their efforts," Cr Schumacher said.

Kris Robinson, Business Development Manager of Regional Housing Limited, said it was exciting to be delivering the first new housing project in the region.

"Regional Housing Limited has been working in the South Burnett community for many years and is excited to be delivering our first new housing project in the region," he said.

"We are very thankful for the opportunity presented by this unique partnership between Queensland Government, Regional Housing Limited and South Burnett Regional Council - the first of its kind for RHL.

"We know that the South Burnett community needs more housing than one development can provide and are working hard to secure more projects like this."

The editor's desk BurnettToday

Hello and thank you for picking up another edition of Burnett Today.

In this edition, besides the stories on the front page, you'll also find lots of other yarns that might pique your interest. We've got some pieces on the Kingaroy health expo, the White Dove Ball, and the Kumbia races.

A couple of pieces I wrote for this week's paper were on the Reserve Bank of Australia's cash rate rise. I had a lot to learn for these pieces and this formed the basis for the explainer piece.

I'm very sure that many of you reading this will have more of an understanding of what it all means and more in-depth than the explainer goes.

If this is the case with this piece or any other piece I write please do feel free to contact me with any concerns or complaints you might have.

I pride myself on continually learning and hopefully becoming a better journalist with each passing issue.

Outside of work, most of the music I have listened to recently has been on steady rotation for a while now, but I did listen to a couple of new albums.

The two albums I've listened to recently have been angel in realtime. By Gang of Youths, and Blackbraid I by Blackbraid.

Gang of Youths angel in realtime. Is not for me. Do you ever listen to something, understand why people like it, but just think, yeah not my deal?

That's how I feel about this album generally. It's definitely got some great songs that I do enjoy like the man himself and the kingdom is within you, but I think most of the other songs just sound really similar.

I think it's four different songs written 13 times.

I don't think I'll be listening to it a second time but this is more to do with my tastes.

Blackbraid I by Blackbraid is the first album by this artist and I think it's good, with room to grow.

Black metal has this trope that sometimes comes along where you're left wondering "is the mixing terrible, or am I just listening to black metal?"

As I drove down the Blackbutt Range this was something I wondered.

I'll give it another, perhaps more attentive listen.

I'd heard some of the singles before and they were great.

One in particular to check out is one called Barefoot Ghost Dance on Blood Soaked Soil.

A very black metal title indeed.

Enjoy the paper.

Lunch to make a difference

A community luncheon will be held to help those less fortunate this Christmas.

The Mayor's Community Christmas Luncheon will bring much-needed cheer to the South Burnett on Friday, 25 November 2022 at the Kingaroy Town Hall.

Tickets are now on sale for $25 at all Council Customer Service Centres.

This is an important fundraiser for the South Burnett region with all proceeds supporting local families in need this Christmas.

Mayor Brett Otto encourages South Burnett locals to purchase a ticket and join in a festive feast for a good cause.

"This luncheon is an opportunity for us to come together, share a wonderful meal, think about how privileged we are to live in this beautiful region, and pay it forward to those in our community who may be doing it tough," Mayor Otto said.

"Christmas is a time for hope and a time for giving, so please purchase a ticket to the Mayor's Community Christmas Luncheon so we can make it an extra special Christmas for everyone in our region."

The Mayor's Community Charity Luncheon will welcome entertainment from Friends of the Shed as well as raffles with a variety of prizes generously donated by local South Burnett businesses.

Reef protection regulations

IMPORTANT INFORMATION for graziers, sugarcane producers and banana growers in the Burnett Mary region

From 1 December 2022, beef cattle graziers, sugarcane producers and banana growers will need to follow minimum practice agricultural standards under the Queensland Government's Reef protection regulations.

Agricultural advisers must keep records of the tailored advice they provide to producers about the minimum standards.

Bench to remember Smithy

By Jessica McGrath

Smithy's legacy will live on as Murgon residents share their knowledge and passion for their community.

More than 80 people showed up to see a memorial bench officially unveiled for the late Mark Smith on Saturday, 5 November.

The bench is now at home outside the late Murgon businessman's shop - Mark Smith Menswear.

The inscription on the memorial bench reads:

- Dedicated to Mark 'Wallaby' Smith
- 19.07.55 - 16.05.22
- Lovingly remembered by the Murgon Community and MBDA

Murgon Business Development Association president Leo Geraghty said it was a fantastic turnout for the special event.

"We're here to remember this guy - he was so much loved by the community, so much part of the community," Leo said.

The chair will further preserve the community champion's legacy.

"Hopefully this chair will be a remembrance of him and some place where people can sit and share their knowledge and be part of the tourism business that Murgon creates - because that's what he did - he talked to every Tom, Dick and Harry that walked up past his shop," Leo said.

"He was a real Murgon supporter for years."

Mark Smith was the president of the Murgon football club, president of the Murgon

Golf Club and president of the Murgon Business Development Association.

He was also known to be very generous to any local cause.

"He was a champion to everyone, to all communities in that regard and probably the most champion he was to his family - he loved his family and he's going to be sadly missed by them," Mr Geraghty said.

Mark's son, Jeremy Smith thanked everyone for their support.

"As sad as it is, it's really nice to see the amount of people that showed up for the unveiling of Dad's seat," he said.

"I know he'd be humbled, he loved the community that much that he put into it as much as he did for our family."

Jeremy thanked the Murgon Business Development Association, the South Burnett Regional Council and the others who had spent their time creating the seat. Murgon councillor Kathy Duff noted how special the event was.

"It's wonderful to see so many people here to honour the wonderful and late Mark Smith," she said.

Kathy shared a prayer for the Murgon community and the new memorial bench.

"God bless this seat that will forever be a reminder of the wonderful, love, generosity and care generated from his shop and his home and his community that he loved so much," she said.

"May all those who sit on this seat be reminded of his spirit and love for Murgon."

Man charged with alleged assault on paramedic, police

By Jessica McGrath

A man who was involved in a serious crash allegedly assaulted the ambulance officer who was there to help him.

The 52-year-old Murgon man has been charged with multiple offences after being involved in a serious single-vehicle crash at Redgate on 29 October.

Police will allege that at about 2.40pm the man attended a licensed premises in Hivesville where it is alleged that he stole a bottle of alcohol.

At about 11.25pm that night, the man was involved in a serious single-vehicle crash on the Burnett Highway at Redgate and was taken to hospital with non-life threatening injuries.

Queensland Police investigations are continuing into this incident.

Police will allege that the man seriously assaulted an ambulance officer in the course of their duties and then also allegedly seriously assaulted a police officer.

The man has been charged with two counts of disqualified driving, stealing, serious assault on a public officer performing a function and serious assault on a police officer.

He is due to appear in Murgon Magistrates Court on 6 December.

A PORTFOLIO UPDATE -TOURISM & VICS, SPORT & RECREATION, COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES

Vistor Information Centres

We are extremely well serviced by some fabulous displays in our region's Visitor Information Centres which are staffed by our wonderful volunteers. Wondai has the Timber display, Kingaroy the story of peanuts, Blackbutt with its history of the region and Roy Emerson's contribution to tennis. South Burnett Energy Centre in Nanango has recently had an upgrade to the outdoor area with the installation of synthetic grass. Don't forget the Motors which originally powered Nanango township are fired up on the first Saturday of the month. Go down and have a look.

Sport and Recreation

South Burnett Regional Council is supporting South Burnett Rugby League in the delivery of the Greg Inglis Goanna Academy Clinic on 10 November at the Kingaroy Rugby League Grounds. Buses, will be available for kids, parents and caregivers. For more information go to www.goannaacademy.com.au.

A number of South Burnett Youth have been awarded financial assistance due to their qualification to represent the State in the respective chosen field. Congratulations to these young people.

Commercial Enterprises

Saleyards - As well as the commercial and social benefits that the saleyards bring to the rural community, I see potential for tourism as it gives many urban visitors an opportunity to meet the local rural producers and mix with the locals.

Dams - An extremely busy month at both dams with the end of school holidays and fishing comps at both Boondooma and Bjelke-Petersen Dams. Council was successful in a grant application with some much needed upgrades to facilities.

Aerodromes - Council has awarded the tender for the upgrade of lighting to the Kingaroy airport to a local firm will allow for much safer landings and take-offs especially important to the Flying Doctor which is a service so essential to our residents.

WATER METER READING PROGRAM

Council wishes to advise residents that South Burnett Regional Council and/or its appointed water meter reading officer will soon begin reading water meters throughout the region for the half year period ending 31 December 2022. This will apply to all premises connected to the water supply schemes in Blackbutt, Boondooma, Kingaroy, Kumbia, Murgon, Nanango, Proston, Proston Rural, Tingoora, Wondai and Wooroolin for the purpose of recording water meter readings.

The water meter reading program commenced on Tuesday 1 November 2022 and is expected to continue until Friday 30 December 2022 and will be conducted between the hours of 6.00am and 6.00pm daily.

The water meter reading program collects information for the billing of water consumption that will be included on the 6 monthly rate notices to be issued in February 2023.

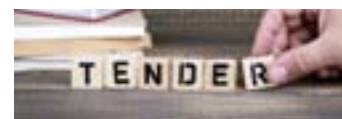

Meter reading personnel may be required to enter properties to gain access to and read the water meters. It is a requirement of our water meter reading personnel that soil or other material that is removed from any meter box to record a reading is returned to the meter box. This prevents drains from being blocked or ratepayer lawns being damaged by anything removed from the meter box.

For the safety of meter reading personnel, please ensure that your animals are enclosed within your property and check that garden vegetation does not obstruct access to your water meter.

More details about the billing of water consumption and other useful information can be found on Council's website www.southburnett.qld.gov.au.

Enquiries may be directed to Council's Rates Section on telephone (07) 4189 9100 or emailing info@sbrc.qld.gov.au.

Muster glad to be back

By Julian Lehnert and Jessica McGrath

The Murgon Music Muster celebrated its highly-anticipated return last week, bringing close to a thousand fans of country music to the South Burnett for five days of homegrown art.

Following two days of walk-up musicians and bush poets on Wednesday 2 and Thursday 3 November, the Muster's official opening ceremony on Friday, 4 November saw Murgon' PCYC hall packed to the rafters with locals and visitors alike.

After local artist Lloyd Back performed the national anthem and Wakka Wakka elder Max Conlon gave a Welcome to Country, Murgon Rotary Club president and Murgon Music Muster co-chair Heath Sander took to the stage to welcome the hundreds of guests.

"I'd like to thank each and every one of you and welcome you back after a three-year break," he said.

"What you see here today is the start of a 12-month project.

"We've already started the plan for 2023. It starts way back, and no one can understand how much goes into running this event.

"There's a coordination between seven different sports groups - soccer, football, cricket, the Show Society, South Burnett PCYC - and coordinating all those guys is a massive task," Mr Sander added before handing the microphone over to South Burnett councillors Kathy Duff and Gavin Jones.

"It's wonderful to be here, and I'm just so proud that Murgon could put on such a wonderful show," Cr Duff said about the event, with Cr Jones estimating that, on Friday alone, close to 300 caravans and over 900 visitors from outside the region attended the Murgon Music Muster.

The 2022 Muster saw returning local artists Dean Perrett and Lloyd Back on stage, with rising singer-songwriter stars Amber Goldsmith and Paul Ricketts also giving a number of performances.

Visiting musicians included Alice Benfer, Pete Smith, Brendan Radford, Clyde Cameron, Amber Lawrence, Clarrie Weller, and Australian country music legends Felicity Urquhart, Josh Cunningham and Adam Harvey.

Performer Pete Smith and his wife Sandy were thrilled to be at their very first Murgon Music Muster.

"The community spirit is amazing and the food is great," Mrs Smith said.

The couple have seen many country music festivals across Mr Smith's 30-year career.

"It's probably one of the best festivals we've seen," Mrs Smith said.

"They've done an amazing job and it's a credit to the community.

"It's very well organised."

Returning artist Alice Benfer said it was good to be back.

"There's good crowds here and a wide variety of music," she said.

The opening concluded with a few words from former Murgon Rotary Club member Rex Shelton, who returned to the South Burnett for the weekend just to attend the muster.

"When we pick up the papers and we watch TV and read the news, there's a lot of bad news in the world," he said.

"It's everywhere and you can't help but get a bit down at times - it all seems to be a bit of doom and gloom - but I can assure you that, when you all go to hook up your caravans and leave on Sunday and Monday, you'll feel completely different.

"You'll have a high step, you'll be happy and looking forward to the future again - because after listening to country music for two or three days, you'll be on top of the world. I can assure you that."

Woman dies of injuries after Biggenden crash

By Julian Lehnert

A woman in her eighties has died after a two-vehicle crash on one of Biggenden's main streets on 6 November.

A Queensland Police Service spokesperson stated that officers were called to the scene of the crash on Caroline and George streets, Biggenden, at 9am last Sunday, where they found a collision between a Toyota Landcruiser and a Hyundai Grandeur.

"The 84-year-old female driver and sole occupant of the Hyundai was airlifted to the Royal Brisbane and Women's Hospital," the QPS spokesperson added.

Police on Monday confirmed that the 84-year-old resident of Degilbo passed away from her injuries in Brisbane following the incident.

A 66-year-old Maryborough man, the driver of the Toyota, was uninjured.

"The Forensic Crash Unit continues to investigate the crash," police stated.

"Anyone with information, relevant CCTV or dashcam footage is urged to contact police."

Homelessness to rise, too

By Euan Morrisson

The increased cash rate will only add to the cost of living and prove too much for some to afford.

The rise in cash rates announced by the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) on Melbourne Cup Day, Tuesday 1 November will make it more expensive for many people to afford their homes.

Nina Temperton, CEO of South Burnett CTC, said that while it might be hard to quantify what effect this will have in the short term, it certainly won't be good.

"It can only go up," she said,

"I do think that it is likely to take a couple of months - probably longer before we can come up with any anecdotal data.

"We can only go by who turns up with their story."

The cash rates have been rising since May of this year, increasing to a target of 2.85 per cent.

Ms Temperton said CTC had seen the effects of this first-hand.

"We've done more emergency relief and people with more complex needs, whether it's this one [cash rate rise] or the previous and the next, they are definitely having an effect."

At the South Burnett Housing and Homelessness Forum held at the Cultural Centre in Nanango on 7 October, the peak body Q Shelter revealed data that estimated there were at least 200 identified homeless persons and another 100 on the social housing register in the South Burnett.

The data also revealed the numbers had

The South Burnett Housing and Homelessness Forum saw locals gather, share information, and try to come up with solutions moving forward. Picture: EUAN MORRISSON most likely risen since their estimates.

At the same forum, the South Burnett Regional Council revealed data stating there was a 0.3 per cent rental vacancy rate.

A healthy rate is between 2.5 per cent and 3.5 per cent.

This low vacancy rate is one of the drivers of the housing crisis.

Raine and Horne Kingaroy Principal, Jackie Allery said more housing was needed.

"We need to see further land releases, and housing development to ease the squeeze on housing," Mrs Allery said.

"New homeowners are most affected by the rate rise, and cost of living rises.

"Wages have mostly remained the same, they may not have had time to build equity in their property."

It's not just new homeowners who are feeling the pinch though, with landlords having to increase rents as well.

"Owners are looking to increase rents at lease renewals as rates, and cost of living along with interest rate rises are influencing their decisions, more owners are looking to employ agents to manage their homes."

This motif is echoed by the CTC CEO who said it was no longer the poorest needing help.

"We're seeing dual-income families that can't afford rents as an increasing number of landlords are terminating leases they normally wouldn't," Ms Temperton said.

"They terminate the lease so they can charge the next person more. If a dual income couldn't afford an increase in rent, they have to look for a different rental which isn't available so they end up homeless."

Ms Temperton said that while CTC was being run off its feet, there was something simple every day locals could do to help.

"Be kind to everyone," she said.

"Everyone is affected, even people that thought they were secured, everyone is worried."

Ms Temperton mentioned many of the root causes were out of people's hands, but their attitudes were not.

"We can't change the big things, so just be a bit more aware that neighbours, friends, and people in the street are probably struggling too," she said.

"It will lighten the load a little bit."

Explained: Cash rate rise an attempt to battle inflation

By Euan Morrisson

The Reserve bank is attempting to rein in inflation by cooling demand.

On Melbourne Cup Day, Tuesday 1 November, the Reserve Bank of Australia announced an increased cash rate for a consecutive seventh month in a row at a speech given in Canberra.

This comes after the Consumer Price Index rose 7.3 per cent in the September quarter according to the Australian Bureau of Statistics.

This was the highest movement recorded since 1990, with the exception of the implementation of the GST in 2001.

Bendigo and Adelaide Bank's Chief Economist, David Robertson released his monthly report card into the Australian economy, revealing Australian homeowners should expect two further interest rate hikes ahead of Christmas and again in February next year.

"The logic behind the quarter per cent increase (in contrast to the US and UK hiking rates ¾ per cent this week) centred on the lag between rate hikes and seeing an impact on the real economy, the likely decline in inflation next year as supply chains gradually repair, and the fact that the RBA meets monthly, unlike most other central banks," Mr Robertson said.

"The key question ahead for 2023 is whether a neutral rate will be sufficient to tame inflation, particularly after last week's CPI figures showed a rise in core inflation to 7.3 per cent, more than double target at 6 per cent."

As inflation rises and wages do not rise with it, it makes the cost-of-living higher.

There are generally three types of inflation, demand-pull, cost-push, and built-in.

In this case, cost-push is currently the biggest source of inflation.

Cost-push is when prices rise due to an increase in costs along the production process.

Depending on the goods being produced, costs can rise for many different reasons.

Consider the price of fuel. If less fuel is produced, this means there is less supply.

With less supply of fuel but the same demand, this makes the cost of fuel rise and this rise in cost adds to inflation.

This was one very real reason for the current inflation in Australia.

The Average Crude Oil Spot Price calculates an equally weighted price of the WTI Crude Oil Price, Brent Crude Oil Price, and Dubai Crude Oil Price.

For 31 October 2022, the Average Crude Oil Spot Price was US$90.33 per barrel.

The average price from 31 October 2022 to 30 September 2018 was US$66.58 and the average pre-covid price from 31 December 2019 to 30 September 2018 was US$62.82.

This increased cost of oil transfers to the cost of fuel, which then increases inflation and then the cost of living.

Other reasons for the rate of inflation are global supply chain disruptions, especially in China which is still chasing the zero-covid dream, and increased food costs due to floods and worker shortages.

This increased inflation is what the RBA is trying to combat by increasing the cost associated with borrowing money.

The increased cash rates make it more expensive for banks to lend and borrow money and this cost is then handed down to the consumer.

By increasing the costs to consumers, the consumers have less money to spend and demand decreases.

This is how the RBA is attempting to rein in inflation, by cooling demand.

Mini budget a ‘timebomb’

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

TOM MARLAND

The new Federal Government has delivered its first “mini” budget. The irony is that there is nothing “mini” about the economic consequences of the new Government’s misconceived budget reforms.

After being handed one of the best performing economies in the world post the global pandemic – Albanese’s first term will see all of that hard work be for nothing.

150,000 people are estimated to be on the breadline in the next two years. Unemployment will lift from historic lows to be around 5 per cent in Albo’s first term.

The treasurer Dr Jim Chalmers has spent the last few months talking the Australian economy into the ground and claiming that inflation and cost of living pressures are “key challenges of our time”.

Inflation in Australia is being driven by three key indices - food, fuel and power.

The “mini” budget does nothing to alleviate these issues - in fact it drives them even harder.

Albo is letting the RBA take all the flack for increasing interest rates while he can simply blame everyone else for rising inflation.

Despite all of the doom and gloom coming from the Treasurer, there is actually an extra $40 billion in the budget thanks to our coal, gas and agricultural exports.

Rather than putting that money back into the things that will actually sustain our economy into the future – Anthony Albanese has decided to cut funding from industries that actually pay the bills.

Federal Treasurer Dr Jim Chalmers delivered his first Federal Budget on Tuesday, 25 October.
Picture: FILE

The “mini” budget provides an additional $4.7 billion for childcare on top of the $10 billion we already pay to profit driven service providers. Albo’s paid parental scheme will be increased to 26 weeks by 2026 so let’s call it a $20 billion drain. Each year, every year - plus inflation.

The PBS gets a further $1.2 billion boost - on top of the $14 billion we already spend per year.

Medicare gets a $2 billion boost - on top of the $30 billion annual budget.

The Pacific Islands pick up $1.4 billion over the next four years while our own people live in tents trying to find houses.

The NBN gets another $2.4 billion kicker on top of the $50 billion spent to date so people can download movies faster.

The Great Barrier Reef also gets another $1.2 billion so we can demonise a few more farmers and shut down a bit more of our sustainable fishing industries.

The “environment” gets $2.3 billion so we can lock up a bit more country to be infested by pigs and cats and then burnt to the ground by bushfire.

Aged care will get $2.5 billion - on top of the $30 billion already spent per year.

And just in time for the Victorian election, $2.2 billion has been ear marked for Melbourne’s suburban rail link which Infrastructure Australia has criticised as being unfeasible.

I guess it is only pork barrelling if you not eating the pork crackling.

Dr Jim was very restrained in not allocating any further funds to the NDIS. He also failed to mention that the cost of the NDIS is surging to a forecast $51.8 billion by 2025-26 - and potentially over $100 billion by 2030.

These are all wonderful initiatives and I take my hat off to Dr Jim for wanting to spend our money so “responsibly”. But the hard bit is - who pays for all of this largesse once all the money is spent?

There is nothing in the budget for small businesses other than the prospect of multi-employer bargaining agreements which will artificially increase wages but also push more vulnerable people out of work.

The extra dough certainly won’t be coming out of the Murray Darling Basin - Labor have already committed to taking a further 1000 gigalitres of water out of production by 2024.

Dr Jim has also cut $22 billion in proposed investments in regional Australia.

Hells Gate Dam is gone - just a little 2,100-gigalitre dam that could grow and develop North Queensland and the county for generations.

Urannah Dam is gone also - just an irrigation and hydro dam that will drive over $4 billion in GDP.

$1 billion has been cut for the Dungowan Dam, Emu Swamp Dam, Hughenden Irrigation Scheme and the Wyangala Dam Wall Raising Project. Just little bits of unnecessary investment that grow food and create jobs.

Paradise Dam looks like its $600 million funding commitment before the election hasn’t met the chopping block. But it’s funding has been “deferred” to future estimates, so I won’t sleep well until the concrete is poured and the dam is full of water again.

Dr Jim’s “mini” budget makes very little mention of the industries keeping this country afloat - coal, gas, iron ore and agriculture.

He also made very little comment of who will pay for all the fluffy stuff once Labor’s 43 per cent emissions reductions targets get tight as we rush towards 2030.

Or about power prices escalating as we shut down reliable coal fired power stations and replace them with solar and wind that only work 30 per cent of the time.

Dr Jim’s first budget paints him like a modern-day Robin Hood.

But he’ll soon have to be a magician and pull a rabbit out of a hat when all the money is gone.

Big changes to Aus Day

By Euan Morrisson

The changes to the ceremony are considered a cost-saving venture, and a chance to move forward as a region.

North Burnett Regional Council decided to change their Australia Day award ceremonies and events at their last meeting held at Mt Perry on 26 October.

From 2023 the Council will hold one regional citizenship and regional Australia Day awards presentation ceremony at a single location that will rotate across the region year-to-year.

There will also be no more local events put on by the Council. The number of award categories has also been cut down from nine to seven.

The seven categories for regional awards will be:

- Citizen of the Year
- Young Citizen of the Year
- Volunteer of the Year
- Sportsperson of the Year
- Cultural Award
- Service to Sport
- Community Organisation of the Year.

As well as the regional awards, Council also endorsed the 'Local Legend' Award to be issued to someone from each community of Biggenden, Gayndah, Mount Perry, Mundubera, Eidsvold and Monto.

Mayor Les Hotz said the awards are a time to celebrate and acknowledge those outstanding individuals and organisations that have made a significant contribution to our region.

"I encourage you all to take the time and submit a nomination for someone you believe is deserving of recognition."

If you know someone that deserves to be recognised for their contribution, you can nominate them today.

Nominations for the awards are now open until 11pm, Tuesday, 6 December, 2022 and are completed online: northburnett.qld.gov.au/australia-day-awards-and-nominations/

Burglaries, drugs and guns: An 'untidy' week of crime

By Julian Lehnert

Murgon and Cherbourg suffered under a wave of break-ins, property damage and theft late last month, with police called out to a number of incidents across the two towns.

A Murgon police station spokesperson said on Monday that officers were aware of - and in some cases still investigating - a total of nine offences in the area between 24 and 30 October.

Police first charged a woman with possession of a dangerous drug and failing to properly dispose of needles and syringes after conducting a vehicle search in the early hours of 24 October.

Officers allegedly located a quantity of methylamphetamine, three hypodermic needles and syringes in the vehicle on Gore Street, Murgon.

A 29-year-old Kingaroy woman is due to appear at Murgon's Magistrates Court on 22 November in relation to the incident.

The following day, police attended the site of an alleged burglary on Collins Road, Cherbourg.

Officers reported that a group of unknown offenders allegedly gained entry to a property at around 8.55am that day by bypassing a series of locks at the rear of the premises.

"The offenders then entered the property through the rear door and conducted an untidy search of the lower floor," police reports stated.

"They [the offenders] took a sheet of the clothesline in the rear courtyard and lit a fire on the curtain hanging on the window immediately adjacent to the rear door.

"The fire caused burn damage to the curtain, the internal window framing, several glass louvres and the sheet. The suspects then exited the residence and fled," the report continued, concluding with a statement that investigations into the matter are ongoing.

Later that same day, an unknown offender allegedly attended a dwelling on Angel Avenue, Murgon, and attempted to open a vehicle parked at the premises after turning off the power to the building.

Officers reported that the alleged trespasser was unsuccessful in opening the vehicle and subsequently fled on foot, with investigations into the incident still ongoing.

At 9.17am on 27 October, a vehicle light bar, a solar panel attached to a roof rack, a Kings awning and a roof rack were stolen from a Chinchilla Wondai Road, Ballogie address.

Police stated investigations are continuing into the matter.

The following days of Friday, 28 October to Sunday, 30 October, saw a spate of break-ins and disturbances across Murgon.

Between 3.30pm on 28 October and 7.30am on 31 October, unknown offenders allegedly entered an education facility located on Angel Avenue, Murgon.

Police claim that the offenders gained entry through an unlocked door at the rear left side of the building. They opened an internal door, entered a small room at front of the building and conducted a search of the building.

The offenders emptied two shopping bags containing school uniforms onto the floor in the middle of the room and caused damage by releasing fire extinguishers.

They opened all internal drawers within the building and conducted a tidy search before decamping in an unknown direction. Investigations are continuing into the matter.

Between 6.30pm on 29 October and 8am on 30 October, unknown offenders allegedly attended a Gore Street, Murgon business and gained entry to the building through a security screen and a glass window.

They conducted an untidy search of the office including accessing a safe within the office. Investigations are continuing into the matter.

During the same period, unknown offenders allegedly attended a Taylor Street, Murgon business and gained entry into the premises by smashing a window.

The offenders allegedly graffitied along a fence, the outside of the hall and along a container with white and grey paint before exiting the premises, leaving the door open.

Police stated that it is currently still unknown if any property was stolen. Investigations are continuing into the matter.

At 8pm on 29 October, police attended a Stephens Street, Murgon address in relation to a disturbance.

During the course of the investigation, it is alleged that police located a modified bolt action rifle and various rounds of ammunition.

A 62-year-old Murgon man was charged with possessing a shortened firearm, unlawful possession of weapons and lack of authority required to possess explosives.

The man is due to appear at the Murgon Magistrates Court on 8 November.

About 8.45pm on 30 October, unknown offenders allegedly attended a Macalister Street, Murgon address and smashed the rear windscreens of two vehicles.

Police stated that their investigations suggest a mallet, which was located next to the vehicles, was used to break the windows. Investigations are continuing into the matter.

Queensland Police Service reminds residents of the Burnett that they can contact Policelink on www.police.qld.gov.au/reporting with any and all information regarding a crime.

Those with information may also report it to Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or crimestoppersqld.com.au.

A quickstep to jazz

By Jessica McGrath

Step back in time to the jazz age with the South Burnett Community Orchestra.

The orchestra's main annual concert 'Quickstep Down Jazz Lane' is guaranteed to get your toes tapping and fingers clicking.

Come on down to the Kingaroy Town Hall on Saturday, 19 November for a night of jazzy rhythms and classic swing melodies.

Under the guidance of SBCO's Musical Director Jo Kennedy, the orchestra will play through some jazz standards from some of the greats such as Cole Porter, Louis Armstrong and George Gershwin as well as some big band melodies and orchestral film music.

Audience members will be encouraged to dance along if they like or to simply sit and enjoy the tunes.

The orchestra features a wide range of musicians from high school students to accomplished musical professionals to community members from the South Burnett and beyond who fit the weekly orchestra rehearsals around their studies, busy careers, retirement social calendars and families.

As part of their preparations for their concert the orchestra welcomed specialist tutors during their May and August Saturday workshops to help fine-tune their jazzy rhythms.

Percussion specialist Jeff Jarrott and woodwind specialist Rohan Hardy visited Kingaroy to share their extensive musical knowledge with the orchestra.

These workshops with the tutors were made possible by a Regional Arts Development Fund grant which is a partnership between the Queensland Government and the South Burnett Regional Council to support local arts and culture in regional Queensland.

South Burnett Community Orchestra's 'Quickstep Down Jazz Lane' concert will be held at the Kingaroy Town Hall on Saturday, 19 November.

Doors will open at 6pm ahead of the concert at 6.30pm. There will be a licensed bar open for drinks throughout the night and optional supper boxes can be pre-purchased before Wednesday, 16 November.

Adult tickets are $25 and concession tickets are $15 which are available at Kingaroy Office Central, online (www.trybooking.com/CCQFE) or at the door.

Jack-knifed trailer

A driver has had a scary afternoon. A single vehicle towing a trailer has jack-knifed on the D'Aguiar Highway near Cafferys Road at Nanango, Friday 4 November. A Queensland Fire and Emergency Services spokesperson stated that two crews arrived at about 2.45pm, and shortly after their arrival, no further action was required. A Queensland Ambulance Service spokesperson said there was a single occupant with no serious injuries.

Roll-over

A ute carrying a load of dirt rolled over on Memerambi-Gordonbrook Road, Friday 4 November. A Queensland Fire and Emergency Service crew arrived at the scene to ensure it was safe at about 4pm, according to a QFES spokesperson. One person was assessed at the scene by Queensland Ambulance Service paramedics and was seen to be stable. He declined to be transported to hospital.

$1M reward for info

In a state-first, a $1 million reward for information from the public has been announced as part of an ongoing investigation into the 2018 murder of 24-year-old Toyah Cordingley in Far North Queensland. Police Minister Mark Ryan approved the major reward for information leading to the location and arrest of 38-year-old Rajwinder Singh, believed to be overseas, in relation to Toyah's murder. Toyah was reported missing on Sunday, 21 October, 2018 before her body was tragically discovered the following morning at Wangetti Beach, just north of Cairns.

Investigations into Toyah's death, including bringing the person responsible to justice, remains a priority for the Queensland Police Service with the establishment of Operation Quebec Clarify. Police are interested in information about the whereabouts of Rajwinder Singh, who was last known to live in Innisfail but is originally from Buttar Kalan, Punjab India. Anyone with information regarding the case or the whereabouts of Rajwinder Singh is urged to contact Queensland Police via www.police.qld.gov.au/reporting or Call Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000.

Burnett firies’ charity ride

By Julian Lehnert

A group of Burnett firefighters has once again raised thousands of dollars for men's health by taking to the road on their postie bikes.

Members of the Kingaroy and Wondai fire brigades, as well as several visiting firefighters from as far north as Mackay, gathered at Kingaroy's fire station on 2 November for their fourth annual Movember Postie Bike Run, aiming to raise vital funds for men's physical and mental health.

Kingaroy firefighter Dan Hurt, who helped organise the ride, said the idea behind an annual 1,000 kilometre trip around Queensland came after previous smaller-scale fundraising efforts were well-received by the crew.

“For the first ten years, we’d just all grow moustaches and maybe raise a few hundred dollars, but on the tenth anniversary [of Movember at the fire brigade] we figured ‘why not do something bigger?’ - so we came up with the bike ride,” he explained.

To this extent, over a dozen local and visiting firefighters now don their helmets and rev up their bikes every year, with the annual endeavour having already raised over $30,000 for the Movember movement.

The riders, which included participants from Kingaroy, Wondai, Mackay, Rockhampton and Caboolture, set out from the Burnett on the morning of Wednesday, 2 November, with the first leg of their trip taking them to Kingsthorpe via Burrandowan and Bell, before traveling to the Sunshine Coast, Kenilworth and Linville, and finally ending up at Cooyar for their return on 4 November.

Mr Hurt explained the postie bikes, which each member bought and restored over the course of the previous years, can reach top speeds of 70 to 100 kilometres an hour, with several of the participating firies pouring their heart and soul into engine upgrades and new paint jobs.

“For some, it’s become a little bit of an obsession!” he said.

In previous years, the 1,000 kilometre treks took the group through the North Burnett, Western Downs and Fraser Coast regions.

At each leg of their trip, the group booked stays at local hotels, aiming to raise further funds via raffles while also looking to give back to the communities they visit along the way.

This year, the 13 participating riders raised a collective $5,000 of their $12,000 goal before their trip even began.

The group set off from Kingaroy on 2 November. 307056

“The most a firefighter can grow is a mo’, because we have to wear masks. So, the mo’ is sort of a representation of the fire brigade!” Mr Hurt said.

“This little idea we’ve had at the shed here has turned into a great annual ride.”

As of writing, the fourth annual Kingaroy Firies Postie Bike Run has raised $6,538 of its $12,000 goal.

The group still accepts donations via <https://bit.ly/3zP9vK4>.

Mo’s on the go in month-long campaign for male health

By Peter Waterman,
The Pharmacy Guild of Australia

November sees a fun charity event called Movember when men are encouraged to grow moustaches to raise awareness of men's health issues such as prostate cancer, testicular cancer and men's suicide.

While it is a fun event, it highlights that men's health is often an under-serviced area of community health and we need to raise awareness of the need for men to look after their health.

A major policy initiative is the Government's National Men's Health Strategy 2020-30, which has identified five priority health issues: mental health, chronic conditions, sexual and reproductive health and conditions where men are over-represented, injuries and risk taking, and healthy ageing.

The Strategy recognises that too often in the past, men have been reluctant to seek help with health issues - and mental health issues in particular - but that this culture is changing and men recognise that “soldiering on” does no-one any good.

Community pharmacies can play a pivotal role in this area, providing advice and confidential counselling for health issues which a man may need help with.

Men's health has often been either neglected or narrowed down to urological issuues but it is important to note that among the 10 most common causes of death among men are heart disease, lung disease, diabetes, cancers and mental health issues.

Mental health is an area of growing concern for many men, where community pharmacies are playing an increasing role in addressing it.

Community pharmacists are in the position to identify the first signs of mental health deteriorations and start a confidential conversation as they are one of the most trusted health professionals in the local community.

Community pharmacies are the most accessible healthcare in Australia so men feeling anxiety, depression, loneliness and other mental health issues can feel at-ease and confident in speaking to them for advice and help.

With 6000 community pharmacies across the country and many pharmacies open late and on weekends, they can be accessed whenever and wherever a man needs them.

In the past there has been a stigma associated with mental health issues but those days - thankfully - are behind us and no-one entering a pharmacy to discuss depression or other mental health issues should experience judgement.

In fact, they will meet trained and compassionate staff, many of whom have undergone training in mental health first aid as part of their commitment to helping patients.

While community pharmacies help manage patients experiencing mental illness across the broad spectrum, depression is the most common presentation, affecting about one in eight men at some stage during their lives.

There is a need to recognise and help patients suffering from depression, as it is a leading cause of suicide which in Australia claims some nine lives every day.

According to the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, males are three to four times more likely to take their own lives than females. Males aged 40-49 and over the age of 85 have the highest rates.

These are alarming figures and community pharmacy is determined to help lower them.

The ability of pharmacies to help these patients was recognised in the House of Representatives Select Committee on Mental Health and Suicide Prevention report released late last year which noted “[t]he Committee recommends that the Australian Government evaluate the efficacy of pharmacy mental health training programs and strengthen funding to support an expansion of best practice training in mental health and suicide prevention for all pharmacists and pharmacy staff.”

The report also included that “[p]armacists are often the most accessible health professionals the public encounter and pharmacy is among the most trusted professions in Australia.” “Pharmacists have earned this trust through their competence, demonstrating consistently high standards of skill and care and building strong relationships with the community.”

Any person with any mental health issue, or anyone who knows of someone who may need help, is encouraged to come and have a chat with their pharmacist.

Being able to walk in off the street and speak to a health professional who listens and understands the issues and can provide counselling is very important.

In addition, pharmacists are also ideally placed to recognise potential early signs or symptoms of depression, anxiety or other mental health disorders in the community pharmacy setting.

With more than 80 per cent of people using the same pharmacy regularly, a community pharmacist may be able to more easily recognise changes in a person's behaviour and initiate a conversation.

Patients also felt more at ease talking to the pharmacists that they already knew and may have been dealing with for their health needs over a long period.

Care expo's healthy aims

By Julian Lehnert

The second annual South Burnett Health and Community Services Expo at Kingaroy's Town Hall brought together scores of care professionals and organisations for an informative day of networking, according to its organisers.

South Burnett Regional Council worker Margie Hams, who helped bring the yearly event to life in 2021, said the Expo's second outing on Thursday, 3 November was well-received and attended by industry workers and the region's residents alike.

South Burnett businesses and organisations like the Suicide Prevention Network, Conquer gym, CTC, Burnett Home Aids and the local library held stalls side by side, with many workers taking advantage of the opportunity to get in contact with others in their field.

Employees of Bunya Care were all too eager to help out the inquiring public. 306597

North Burnett gets onboard

By Euan Morrisson

Public transport is coming to the North Burnett.

The North Burnett Regional Council held a forum on the long-distance transport service on Monday 7 November, at the Mundubbera Community Hall.

The forum came after the Council secured the Translink coach contract to provide public transport to the North Burnett region.

The forum was to engage with the community about potential service enhancements and to share their likes, dislikes and ideas.

The forum was said to have had quite a turnout with over 25 people and Councillors Mesner, Giddins, Payne, Jones, and council staff coming to the event.

The forum was very productive, with many helpful ideas put forth by members of the community on how Council could improve the transport service.

Council's latest updates on the performance, customer service, communication and potential service enhancements which were shared with the audience were well received.

Discussions that emerged will provide the basis of a plan for developing the service further, in the near future.

At the South Burnett Housing and Homelessness Forum on 7 October, North Burnett Regional Councillor Melinda Jones said it was important services are used for them to be maintained.

"It's a bit of a two-fold because people jump up and down and say there's not enough transport, but when the transport is there it doesn't get utilized," Cr Jones said.

"So the transport then gets reduced because the numbers are actually showing it's not being used."

"If they were to maintain the cost it's no longer usable because it's too costly so yeah services get reduced or removed."

There was quite a turnout at the public forum.

Picture: SUE PAYNE FACEBOOK

Cr Jones also said it was the tyranny of distance that made public transport difficult in rural and remote areas like the North Burnett.

"And when you've got a large geographical area that, to get from one town to the next you're travelling like an hour or two hours to your closest medical facility such as Bundaberg or Maryborough, that's where the challenge is."

"We don't have rail that comes through anymore, so more community solutions based transport that possibly with funding that might be available that might be the solution."

The long-distance coach will service the following routes:

- Mundubbera-Bundaberg; Mundubbera-

Bundaberg (via Eidsvold); Mundubbera-Maryborough and Monto-Ceratodus (on demand).

While servicing North Burnett locals it will also provide a public transport option for tourists and workers wishing to travel to the region for work or play.

Lions give sporting chance

By Maddison Richards

The Goomeri Lions Club are well known for their hot chip van but have recently come on board to sponsor four young Goomeri local athletes who represented the Wide Bay Team at the Queensland School Sport Track and Field State Championships for 2022.

This event was held at the QSAC Stadium, Nathan, Brisbane. The event was held over a week-long period, starting on Tuesday, 11 October and finishing on Sunday, 16 October.

The four young athletes chosen to compete were Maddison Richards, a Murgon State High school student who qualified for under-17 girls discus.

The following athletes are students at Goomeri State School. Madison Holding under-14 girls qualified for 400m. Eli Richards under-12 boys qualified for discus and Ella Stanton under-11 girls qualified for long jump.

This funding for the athletes to attend this event relieved financial stress in the time frame needed to pay the fees.

The Lions Club was pleased to assist when asked for funding, as the nomination fee and uniform was expensive.

“It relieves some of that financial stress, and help the advancement of local school children,” Goomeri Lions Club treasurer Don Louis said.

“Hot chips go towards something worth while” said Ree, a member of the Lions Club.

The parents of the athletes were especially thankful for the funding.

“It helped get her there,” said Amanda Stanton, mum to Ella.

“Helped a lot. Paid their fees and uniform,” Teresa Holding said, Madison’s mum.

“Can’t thank the Lions Club enough for their financial funding in helping send the athletes to Brisbane,” said Fiona Richards.

This was the first time Madison Holding and

The athletes proudly wearing their Wide Bay Uniform.

Ella Stanton have competed at a State level.

Maddison Richards placed in the top eight for her discus event. Madison Holding placed 19 in her race by 0.01 of a second.

“First time using blocks,” said her mother, Teresa Holding.

Still unsure of her final placing, Ella Stanton competed against 29 girls in total and jumped a distance of 3.65m. Eli Richards tried his best and hopes to receive a better position next year.

Previously competing at that same stadium for Little Athletics, Eli said “It was a completely different experience.”

The Goomeri Lions Club would be happy to sponsor any young people to help them represent their school, region or club in the Goomeri area.

“The Goomeri Lions Club is always willing to help,” said Gail Louis, a member of the Lions Club.

Cars seized in crackdown

Police have made a hard stance against hoon impounding more than 50 vehicles across south east Queensland.

Operation Uniform Elderberry has seen more than 2000 fines issued since June as part of the major police operation.

Police Minister Mark Ryan said the Queensland Police Service targeted hooning behaviour under the operation.

“The coordinated anti-hoon operation conducted across the South-East, has resulted in police impounding 59 vehicles and issuing 2,048 infringement notices,” he said.

“Hoons driving dangerously in defective vehicles is a disaster waiting to happen.

“We do not want hoons tearing up our roadways like racetracks and putting themselves and innocent road users at risk for the sake of social media notoriety.”

Police Minister Mark Ryan congratulated police for their perseverance in investigating hooning activity and, when appropriate, seizing vehicles under Queensland’s tough anti-hooning legislation.

“The idiotic behaviour police have seen throughout this operation is downright disturbing and I commend officers for removing these vehicles from our roads and taking action against those responsible,” he said.

Road Policing and Regional Support Command Assistant Commissioner Ben Marcus said the operation produced significant results.

“Our traffic officers have been working closely with intelligence officers as part of Operation Uniform Elderberry in targeting high-risk areas and drivers across the South-East,” he said.

“Police have disrupted various hoon events, seen a vehicle catch fire as a result of hooning and uncovered dangerous modifications such as one vehicle which had its steering wheel replaced with a computer game steering wheel.

A total of 59 vehicles have been impounded during Operation Uniform Elderberry. Pictures: QPS

Some of the ripped up tyres Queensland Police have found from alleged hoons.

“Our officers have come across illegal hooning activity being shared on social media apps like TikTok and impounded vehicles of those responsible.”

The police also detected 164 drink and drug drivers as part of their anti-hooning crackdown.

“Our message to anyone taking part in high-risk activities on our roads is that we will continue to target you, investigate your dangerous antics and take action against you,” Assistant Commissioner Marcus said.

Minister Ryan said the State Government’s tough anti-hoon laws was assisting police with apprehending and prosecuting offenders.

“Under these laws (known as owner onus or driver deeming laws) a registered owner of a car must prove they were not driving the vehicle at the time of the offence or else they will face the consequences.

“Along with some of the toughest penalties in the nation, this significant legal advantage for the Queensland Police Service sets Queensland apart from other Australian jurisdictions.”

In addition to penalties for hooning-related offences of fines of up to $5,338 and terms of imprisonment up to 6 months, hoons also face having their vehicle impounded or immobilised.

Members of the public can report hoon activity in their area by contacting the QPS’ Hoon Hotline on 13HOON or making a report online: bit.ly/3DRJUml

Operation Uniform Elderberry at a glance:

- 59 vehicles impounded during Operation Uniform Elderberry
- 2,048 infringement notices issued including 702 for speeding and 182 for vehicle defects
- 219 drivers caught driving unlicensed
- 92 positive drug drivers
- 72 drink drivers detected

Powerlink Queensland - Borumba Pumped Hydro Project - Transmission Connections

Queensland Hydro is investigating a potential pumped hydro energy storage facility at Borumba Dam, located near Imbil, south west of Gympie.

Due to the potential generation and storage capacity of the pumped hydro facility, new transmission lines will be needed from the Borumba site to existing Powerlink substations at Tarong/Halys and Woolooga.

At this early stage, we are looking at social, economic and environmental factors that might influence where proposed transmission lines could be located. Early and ongoing engagement with communities and other stakeholders is an important part of this process.

We would like to invite the community to share your feedback on transmission line corridor options to connect the Borumba Pumped Hydro to the electricity grid.

Ready to rock to the '70s

By Jessica McGrath

South Burnett community members had fun grooving back to the '70s at the annual White Dove Ball.

The ball, hosted as a fundraiser for South Burnett Peace of Mind was held at the Kingaroy Town Hall on Friday, 4 November with entertainment by the band 'Living in the '70s'.

The hard working White Dove Ball committee members Rhonda Trivett, Jamie Mills and Ebony Edwards brought back the first White Dove Ball since 2019.

"We're ready to rock," Rhonda said.

Rhonda started South Burnett Peace of Mind to help those less fortunate, and at the ball she announced the group was back after a break.

"We're going to try our best to see that the community is a place where all the vulnerable people are listened to," she said.

South Burnett councillor Danita Potter thanked Rhonda and the team for their wonderful efforts.

"South Burnett Peace of Mind has done so much for our community," Danita said.

Ros and Katelin Otto and Cr Kathy Duff helped the White Dove Ball attendees feel extra special by doing their hair and make-up on the night.

"It's been a real privilege to do the hair and makeup," Kathy said.

FORD on FOOD

by Chef Jason Ford

Lettuce Be Honest

To be honest, Australians have for many years only known one kind of lettuce. Ironically, I have found that a lot of people don't even know the name of our most traditionally eaten variety. It is called 'Iceberg'. I suppose that if you have only known one kind of lettuce, then you wouldn't really have to know its name. However, in the last few decades many other varieties have flooded into the marketplace, and into many Aussies' veggie gardens. They vary greatly in their colours and textures. Some are pale green, and others are bright red, some are crispy (firm) and some are soft (delicate). The different varieties of lettuce also can widely differ in taste. The greens are often nutty in flavour, while the deep reds can at times be a little bitter. It is not commonly known to Australians that in many other countries such as China and France, lettuce is often cooked like other vegetables. Some of the varieties available from your local greengrocer are oak leaf, mignonette, red velvet, butter, cos, radicchio, frillice and frisee. At the end of the day though, I personally appreciate the crunchy and fresh iceberg lettuce... it's pretty good tucker.

Zesty Lettuce Salad

One of my favourite salad recipes is fresh baby iceberg lettuce leaves, tossed with a drizzle of fresh lemon juice, and splash of olive oil, thinly sliced spring onions, and a light sprinkle of crushed chili flakes. This simple and healthy salad makes a delightful side dish to almost any meal.

Take a step back in time

By Euan Morrisson

Relics from the not-so-distant past will be brought into the light at Wooroolin.

A time capsule buried 50 years ago will be pulled up and unveiled at Wooroolin on Saturday, 12 November.

At a function called 'Back to Wooroolin' held in 1972 a committee of locals put together a time capsule of things dear to them, to be pulled up and examined on the date 12 November, 2022.

In 1972, 'Puppy Love' by Donny Osmond spent six weeks at the top of the charts, films The Godfather and Deliverance were released, and the iconic TV show M.A.S.H. first hit people's screens.

It was the year of the Watergate scandal in the US, the infamous tale of the Andean flight disaster, and the year of Bangladeshi independence from Pakistan.

For Wooroolin, it was the 74th year of settlement.

Wendy Turner is the owner of the Wooroolin post office and is the secretary of the Wooroolin Community Committee.

The committee is made up of Wooroolin residents and a few extras for the time capsule opening.

Wendy said the Saturday is going to be an all-around great day to be at Wooroolin.

"We've got the Wooroolin markets, they run every second Saturday of the month," she said.

"Live music, games for the kids, good parking, a sausage sizzle put on by QCWA, food stalls put on by the Lions Club and the Wooroolin school, and then at 10am we will be unveiling the time capsule."

Once the time capsule has been pulled out and unveiled, it will be displayed inside the Wooroolin Memorial Hall, where members of the public will be able to view all that was inside for a $5 donation.

Wendy Turner said that anyone interested in what was happening 50 years ago ought to come along.

"The cars, the clothes, some really good stuff came out of that era.

Wooroolin State School 1937. 306691

"If people have a picture of themselves from 1972, they should bring that along."

Four of the original committee members from 1972 will be the ones to pull the time capsule into the present.

In the book 'Peanuts and People: Wooroolin 1952-1963' by Raymond Champney, there is an excerpt titled "A 'Time Capsule' Reminder - 2022!"

This excerpt states,

"This sealed capsule was constructed and sealed underground on the 11th November, 1972, to commemorate the "back to Wooroolin" celebrations.

"As presiding chairman that year, I would like to remind people who may be here on the 11th November, 2022, that the capsule, per instructions, is to be raised and contents noted.

"I do trust they will still be in good vacuum packed condition.

"Many items etc. were placed by many people.

"My contribution was a Wooroolin Cricket Club cap, - maybe could be auctioned, or given to my grandchildren.

"No doubt there could be fund-raising celebration as per instructions left with the Kingaroy Shire Council and Commonwealth Bank - Just another thirty-one years (half a generation)!"

"Allan Obel appears to be the youngest in the relevant photo of the special committee and supporters."

Brief history of Wooroolin

By Euan Morrisson

Wooroolin was first taken up under Agricultural Homestead selection in 1898 and 1899.

Wooroolin Provisional School was opened on 18 February 1901 and later became known as Wooroolin State School on 1 January 1909.

By August 1911 the school was overcrowded and because more accommodation was needed the Department decided to put a new building on a new site.

The new school site was opened in 1912 and celebrated its diamond jubilee in 1972.

As many of the pupils rode or drove horses to school there was a horse paddock to the rear of the school grounds.

On 19 December 1904, the section of the Nanango railway line from Wondai to Kingaroy was opened.

Wooroolin was served by this railway line with the Wooroolin railway station until 2009 when the section of railway line was closed.

During the first world war, Wooroolin had formed a volunteer Patriotic Fund Committee.

The main function of this was to suitably farewell soldiers on their departure and welcome them on their return.

After the war ended, the Committee moved to welcome the soldiers home and to form some remembrance for those fallen.

On 27 June 1919, it was decided that to honour those fallen, a memorial hall or school of arts as it was known at the time, would be erected.

It was officially opened on 22 November 1922 by Colonel Cyril Corser of Maryborough Returned Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Imperial League of Australia.

In 1972, a 'Back to Wooroolin' event was held that featured an old-time dance in the hall.

It was at this 'Back to Wooroolin' event that the time capsule was placed in cairn by Sir CF Aldermann.

Sir Charles Aldermann served in the federal government from 1943 until 1972 representing the country party.

Before this, he was a peanut farmer.

He was the party's deputy leader from 1964 to 1966 and served as Minister for Primary Industry from 1958 to 1967.

They were tasked with being prepared to play at the Wondai and Wooroolin ANZAC Day marches in April of that same year.

Every day for five weeks students and Mr Jim Houston, the band leader practised.

This hard work was later realised by the community as the band successfully marched at the Wondai and Wooroolin parades.

In 1999 Wooroolin held a centenary celebration.

A poet's terse verse on the wonders of Wooroolin

By "Rhythm Kid"

The town of Wooroolin's a wonderful sight
With pleasures divine, the soul to delight
The shops and the arcades are fair to behold
All gleaming in shades of silver and gold.
From Woltmans the Butchers to the end of the street
The lawns and borders are faultlessly neat

The pavements so spotless past office and store,
All speak of the might of Councillor Moore.
Now Billy the Barber with art most sublime,
Will tear off your thatch in a very short time
He'll scrape at your chin with marvellous jest
Then homeward he goes to his little love nest.

Or if the emporiums your fancies entice
Get your herrings from Daltons your fresh fish from Price,
What matter the label or stain on the tin
As long as the fish and tomatoes within.
It's only a step from the store to the pub,
Where there's plenty to drink and lashings of grub,

There Alec presides with aspect benign
O'er bottles of whiskey and flagons of wine.
The cockies stand up with their coin on the bar
And brag of the latest thrashers and cars
The cocky is broke as everyone knows
Strike me pink, lord love us! And stone the crows.

IN BRIEF

Orana Origins Story

Do you have a connection with Orana Aged Care in Kingaroy? Or experience and knowledge of its history and development over the past 50+ years? Congregation and community members are warmly invited to join an information and storytelling session about the Orana Origins Story project on Saturday, 19 November from 1 to 4pm at St John's Lutheran Church.

The project seeks to explore, commemorate and celebrate the congregational and community origins of Orana – and strengthen these continuing connections with the region's longest established aged care provider.

Joining the meeting will be LCAQD First Assistant Bishop Ben Hentschke, Lutheran Services Director of Chaplaincy and Ministry Development Pastor Russell Briese and other staff from Lutheran Services and Orana. Afternoon tea will be provided from 4pm. For further information, contact Rodney Patch on 0428 274 088.

School leaver's guide

Wide Bay MP Llew O'Brien has released a School Leavers' Guide for Year 12 students as they prepare for life after high school.

The guide contains a range of information designed to help Year 12s prepare for life after school - whether they are considering university, trade or even starting their own business.

The School Leavers' Guide provides an up-to-date overview of the options, including education and training, financial assistance, employment programs, and other information which may help school leavers as they enter this exciting new phase of life.

The guide will be distributed to secondary schools in the Wide Bay electorate. It is also available for downloading from Mr O'Brien's website at www.llewobrien.com.au or hard copies can be obtained by phoning Mr O'Brien's office on (07) 4121 2936.

Meet North councillors

Members of the public are invited to attend informal meet and greet sessions with their local North Burnett Regional Councillors following all Council General Meetings. Council's next General Meeting will be held in Biggenden on Wednesday, 23 November, with the public session to follow at approximately 11.30am until 1pm, in the Biggenden Boardroom. Bring your ideas and questions and take the opportunity to share what's important to you and your community. No RSVP necessary.

Crash into a pole

A vehicle crashed into a pole in Kingaroy early in the morning. Two patients were transported to Kingaroy Hospital in a stable condition after crashing their vehicle into a pole on William Street and Haly Street at 4.01am on Sunday, 6 November.

Storytime at library

Storytime is now back at all North Burnett libraries. Little ones are welcome to join in the weekly Storytime fun to talk, read, sing and play. No bookings required.

Artists explore ‘Geist Land’

By Jessica McGrath

Five artists have shared their take on ‘Geist Land’ in an astonishing and haunting exhibition at the Kingaroy Regional Art Gallery.

South Burnett artists Judy Brook, Bron Langford and Carmel Nott are joined by visiting artists Belinda Sinclair and Walter Stahl in Kingaroy’s November art exhibition.

Their work was admired for the first time on Friday, 4 November at the official opening.

Artist Bron Langford was very happy with the final result of the exhibition.

“It always looks amazing when it’s up on the walls,” she said.

Opening night MC Danita Potter elaborated on the German word ‘Geist’.

“Geist has two meanings -a spiritual ghost or two, the quality of being spirited, motivated or intelligent,” she said.

“Everyone in this exhibition is showing their own spiritual faith in different ways -whether that’s cosmically through nature or natural elements, people, belongings, connections or places.

“We aptly see all of the artists showing us their innermost geist,” she said.

Redcliffe artist Belinda Sinclair was the centre part of the exhibition.

She had held an exhibition at the Kingaroy Regional Art Gallery in May and had been invited to return.

This time she decided to bring along some old and new friends to join her.

“I wanted to do a show with local artists,” she said.

Belinda firstly invited the Burnett artists to join her before asking Walter, an old friend she had previously exhibited with, to come board for the Kingaroy exhibition.

The exhibition title ‘Geist’ was inspired by Belinda and Walter’s shared German heritage.

Belinda’s works feature some nearby spots including Biggenden’s utopia rock pools, Kingaroy’s Carroll Park and the Somerset region.

Belinda said the exhibition showed the spirit of generosity that was shared between the artists through the collaborative approach.

“By allowing the works to go together it makes for a far richer show,” she said.

“It really has been a big group effort for all of the artists.”

All of the exhibiting artists met together the Sunday before the official opening to hang their artworks and place the sculptures around the Kingaroy gallery.

“It was a lovely day,” Ms Langford said.

The gallery features works from the five artists throughout its rooms focusing on which artworks worked best together rather than having a dedicated space for each individual artist.

“The works looked good together when we placed them side by side,” Ms Langford said.

Artist Bron Langford was very happy with the final result of the exhibition.

“It always looks amazing when it’s up on the walls,” she said.

In addition to the five exhibiting artists, three ‘Croqland’ maps of the South Burnett hang on the walls created by Saint Mary Catholic College art students in Years 5, 6, 8, 11 and 12 as well as a group of home school students.

“How incredible is that -the students are showing you what [the South Burnett] means to them,” Cr Potter said.

Walter, who led the college art workshops as Dr Dr Walter, said it was a privilege to be at St Mary’s. He’s spent around 25 years working on his Croqland collection in Queensland.

Walter mentioned that another meaning to ‘Geist’ was ghost which reflects his Croqland pieces well due to their haunting nature.

He played off the ideas from creation myths about the earth being like a living being.

“New data has been collected that indicates that the story of the rainbow serpent was only half of the truth and research indicates that we all live on a really large crocodile,” he said.

“I found the crocodile to be an amazing vehicle for reconsidering that old myth idea.”

The ‘Geist’ exhibition is extra special for artist Belinda whose mother worked in the Kingaroy silos in the 1960s.

Now the visiting artists’ works hang across the road in the Kingaroy Regional Art Gallery.

After many years away from the region, Belinda loved reconnecting with Kingaroy when she came for her Kingaroy art exhibition in May.

Her next body of work will be inspired by the Burnett region which will feature in the Kingaroy gallery in the near future.

The two visiting artists will each run a workshop during November which are supported by the Regional Arts Development Fund.

Belinda Sinclair’s solar printmaking workshop on 12 November is already booked out.

Whereas, Walter Stahl will run a workshop on Sunday, 20 November from 11am to 2pm will allow artists to create a ‘mythopoetical dream world of Croqland’. Bookings are essential and can be done through the gallery by calling 0488 793 419.

Geist Land will be on display at the Kingaroy Regional Art Gallery until 19 November. The gallery is open daily from 10am - 4pm and on Saturday and Sunday from 9am - 1pm.

Numbers down, spirits up

By Anne Skinner

The horses may have been absent and crowd numbers down, but spirits were definitely in high party mode at Kumbia's Melbourne Cup race day last Tuesday.

Wet weather cancelled the races at Kumbia's annual "Flemington of the Bush" and kept some racegoers away, but the day was brightened by fabulous fashions, the champagne flowed and impromptu footraces on the track had the crowd laughing and cheering.

People flocked to the Kumbia race track from as far away as Bundaberg, Brisbane and the Gold Coast, some for their first experience of a country race meeting.

All was not entirely lost on the racing front, with the signature Kumbia Cup rescheduled for Mt Perry on 12 November.

Racing Queensland chief executive Brendan Parnell said additional races would be scheduled for the area to compensate for the cancellations, while the Kumbia Race Club may decide to hold a replacement meeting.

"It's been a terrible weather year for racing all over Queensland," Mr Parnell said.

"We had to hold a phantom meeting here, where people can still bet and enjoy the social aspect of the day."

Kumbia Race Club president Brian Lenihan said the decision to cancel the five races planned for this year's event had been necessary despite the weather clearing later in the day.

"It was an unsafe track," Mr Lenihan said.

"It's very sad, but it is still a successful day.

"We still have the fashions, plenty of food and betting for races in Melbourne, Brisbane and Sydney."

About 50 fashionistas lined the outdoor catwalk clad in their stylish best to vie for the Fashion on the Field titles in a series of tight finishes adjudicated by judges Shae Cull and Charlie Zemek.

Daniel Evans and Georgia White.

Sonya and Paul Clegg.

The ladies' over 50 event was won by Verelle O'Shanesy whose bright orange and magenta ensemble reflected the sunny mood of the day.

Cozette Hopkins of Kilcoy took out the under-50 title in a lacy purple and lilac frock, while Kumbia's own Shay Barron was third in fresh green teamed with a pink fascinator.

Gold Coast man Peter Dunn strutted off the catwalk the dapper winner of the best dressed male event, while pink frills and flowers won Rebecca Pohle of Gayndah the best headwear crown.

Mr Parnell said the Kumbia Race Club committee had done a "fantastic job" organising the day.

"Race meetings like this are the biggest social event in small towns across Queensland," he said.

"People just enjoy the country hospitality. "Our industry relies very heavily on volunteers and the committee here has all worked together to do a fantastic job."

Tahlia Milligan and Anne George.

For now, Kumbia's famed Melbourne Cup race day is all over until 2023.

"Next year we hope for clearer weather," Mr Lenihan said.

Bernice Bolton and Kumbia Race Club president Brian Lenihan.

Santa Claus Lane Christmas Lights Display 2022

It's time to get festive in the South Burnett and light up your streets for Christmas!

Registrations close 4.30pm Friday 25 November 2022

Please have your lights on for judging of from 7pm - 10pm Thursday 1 December to Sunday 11 December 2022.

Registration is mandatory for your street to be in the running to win the title of Santa Claus Lane and to be featured in the South Burnett Santa Claus Lane Christmas Lights Display 2022 map which will be available in South Burnett Today on Thursday 8 December 2022 and Council's Website.

Santa Claus Lane will be judged based on the cooperation of the houses in the same street for participation. As part of the entry form, entrants are asked to enclose up to one A4 page detailing why the houses in your street should be identified as the winner of Santa Claus Lane. Up to 3 members of the street should be added as contacts to the entry form. This is all about working together as a team, so your entry must talk about how you've collaborated to create your display.

Solar sign thief

The people protesting the solar farm are obviously getting under someone's nose. On 29 October at 11.20pm, a sneaky thief made his way up Kingaroy Barkers Creek Rd STEALING our signs designed to bring awareness to where the solar farm is going.

He must be a rather dull character if he thinks he was not caught on surveillance camera on several properties stealing the signs.

You looked like the thief you are with your torch walking up and down our road stealing signs, in one case actually entering private property to take the sign.

It was not only you that got your picture taken, but we also have your vehicle on camera.

You should be advised that the people being affected by the solar farm are not country hicks, but well educated and successful business people in many fields.

You should also be advised that we all have up to date security systems. If you continue to harass us, our footage will be given to the police.

If your behaviour is an indication of your character, you will have no place around here.

This is a good community. Next time you decide to go on a stealing spree and entering private property: beware, you are being observed.

Karen Mansbridge,
Kingaroy

Lust, not love

It seems like the sexual abuse of children is no longer a serious crime if the recent punishment given to a local child abuser is anything to go by!

Can the judge please explain to us - without giving excuses - why this has happened?

I wonder how many realise that the word pedophile means 'child lover'? Sexual abuse is not love!

Instead of insane attempts to call this horrific activity 'sexual preference' it should be called sexual perversion.

These predators lust after children - they molest, rape and abuse children, they know how to make their victims feel guilty and silence them.

Can those who want to redefine this premeditated abuse be charged with encouraging and enabling this immoral behaviour to continue? Or do they want to join in this abuse?

It is sadly true that some groups have covered up and even protected abusers, but the vast majority are assisting the authorities by holding approved child safety training and reporting suspicious activity to the police.

Why can't those who cover up and protect these abusers be held accountable and be charged with helping them?

Do those who hand out inappropriate punishment realise that they could be encouraging instead of discouraging these child predators?

Maybe it is true that when human life in the womb is devalued the lives of children are as well?

P.W. Marjoram,
Kingaroy

Morning tea on the farm

It was a great day out for the South Burnett Parkinson's Support Group October meeting with a visit to Leah's Farm at Silverleaf. The setting was amazing with lush lawns, an array of unusual out buildings and some garden 'friends'.

Thank you to Leah for sharing her home with us and for her hospitality.

Twenty people came together to enjoy a morning tea, friendship, conversation and laughter.

Most came suitably dressed in farm attire. Phil stood out by adding a twine belt while Ancy had on her pumpkin scones apron.

Several of the blokes had jokes to share to set the mood. Phil also had a copy of The Farmer's Ode to read.

Alison won a prize for the most rewarding farm job of mowing after a drought. Margaret was judged as the most trendiest looking farmer and Col was the happiest looking. Members certainly embraced the theme of the day.

Les and Margaret, who are new residents of Murgon came along to see what the group was about and found us to be a happy, friendly lot who enjoy some fun and laughs.

Our next event is our Christmas party which will take place on Monday, 28 November at 11am, at the Wondai Digger's Club. Cost will be $20 per person.

There will be prizes to be won, unusual games, jokes and plenty to eat

Notify attendance by Wednesday, 23 November. Contact: Carmen on 5486 1268 to book your seat.

Parkinson's disease is a chronic, progressive disease for which there is currently no cure.

The disease has a wide range of symptoms, with no two people presenting the same. Our group welcomes PwP, carers, supporters.

There is no fee to join and meetings consist of guest speakers and social events. For more information phone Darryl: 4168 3116 or Carmen: 5486 1268

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL

AS the saying goes 'life is like a mirror' and the clever use of mirrors in a home can reflect a lot about the lifestyle of the people who live there.

Mirrors come in an endless variety of shapes and sizes. They can be modern or traditional, big or small, hung or placed on a lean against walls for effect.

As a rule of thumb, rooms with high ceilings benefit from vertical mirrors, while horizontal mirrors work better in long rooms.

One of the first things to consider when deciding where to place a mirror is the reflection. Stand where you plan to hang the mirror and consider what will be reflected in it. Mirrors can accentuate works of art or special pieces of furniture that may be placed opposite.

Also, think about where light enters your room. It's best to position a mirror opposite a window, especially in north facing homes to make the most of the afternoon and evening light.

If you are going to hang a mirror, consider placing it on a slight tilt that way it will reflect more of the room.

Also consider if the mirror is going to serve a practical purpose or will it be merely decorative. If you want to be able to check your lipstick on the way out the door make sure the mirror is hung at eye level.

To securely fasten a mirror to a wall, each hook on the back needs its own hook in the wall. A cable wire hung across a single hook or nail won't do the job, especially with large, heavy mirrors.

Mirrors can be used throughout your home.

They add a welcoming feel to a foyer or entry hung above a stylish hall table.

An obvious place for a mirror in older homes is above a mantel. Experts advise positioning the mirror 10 to 15 centimetres above the mantel for maximum effect.

An instant hit of glamour can be added to a bathroom or ensuite by a gorgeous mirror. Look beyond the frameless mirror mounted above the basin and consider a frame for visual impact.

Dining rooms are the traditional place for mirrors. Think grand Victorian homes with thick gold frames. A mirror in a sleek, modern frame would work just as well strategically placed over a buffet.

Mirrors can also be arranged in groups for added visual impact and character. Take care to ensure the space between each mirror is even, making it visually pleasing to the eye. Play around with different shapes and sizes, or hang a set of mirrors for visual uniformity. Think about a group of mirrors the same way you would a collection of art work.

The style of frame will depend on your individual aesthetic. A modern home will suit sleek, unadorned frames. A colonial or country homestead style home suits a rustic wooden frame, or a period home a more traditional gilt, decorative frame.

Don't be afraid to use a large mirror in a small space. Designers often use full length mirrors leaning against a wall in apartments or smaller homes. ●

THE LIVING ROOM 10, Friday, 7.30pm

Have you ever wondered how the fun-loving presenters on this long-running lifestyle show manage to whip up vibrant and inspirational segments week in and week out? The Living Room has been a reliably jovial Friday evening stalwart for the past 11 years, but the show is taking a year-long break so that Amanda Keller, Miguel Maestre, Barry Du Bois and Dr Chris Brown (pictured, right, with Maestre) can have a well-earned breather. While fans fret about whether they'll temporarily defect to Better Homes and Gardens, lap up these final episodes. Tonight, Miguel helps throw a surprise 60th anniversary seafood lunch and Chris lands in Fiji.

SILENT WITNESS ABC TV, Sunday, 9.20pm

It was only a matter of time. After years of fruitless flirting, are the writers behind one of the longest-running forensic crime dramas in Britain finally giving into the romantic pressure? In tonight's season 24 finale, Nikki (Emilia Fox, pictured) and her sidekick Jack (David Caves) share a moment that will have fans either all flustered or covering their eyes. It's a bold move for a series' two main characters to cross the flirting boundary: once done there's no going back. Despite Nikki declaring that their romance would be "totally unethical," temperatures rise, with the background emergency situation edge-of-your-seat stuff. Season 25 can't come quickly enough.

NUDE NEXT DOOR ABC TV, Tuesday, 9.30pm

Digital reporter Siobhan Marin (pictured) lifts the covers on the booming business of "democratised" porn in this timely, thought-provoking Compass special. In recent years, the rise of OnlyFans has seen women and amateur makers of erotica disrupt the male-dominated business of online porn. Today, everyday people can sell their own content for a subscription fee online, with OnlyFans amassing than 1.5 million creators. But is it an empowering movement or merely another form of women being taken advantage of? It's a disheartening insight as Marin speaks with the young women using the platform, laying bare the risks and repercussions.

Reality check:
Brihony Dawson hosts new series
The Challenge Australia.

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE CHALLENGE AUSTRALIA
10, Monday, 7.30pm

There's something oddly gratifying about witnessing this lineup of former reality TV contestants get pushed to their absolute limits in this new series, premiering tonight. Hosted by Brihony Dawson, who takes the mantle as Australia's first non-binary TV presenter, the players are thrown together as couples at the whim of an algorithm to compete in back-breaking challenges. Featuring Brittany Hockley (The Bachelor) Cyrell Paule (MAFS), Olympic swimmer Emily Seebohm (I'm A Celebrity) and Ciarran Stott (The Bachelorette), among others, there's a $100,000 prize for each male and female winner. Meltdowns and hookups promise to be the name of this game.

HOME FOCUS

EASY LIVING WITH SHEDS

THE home has 2 queen size bedrooms, one built-in, a cosy lounge or sitting area with reverse cycle air-conditioning, separate dining or extra living space, large laundry.

The property could easily be made into a 3 bedroom home with the addition of a dividing wall. Although the home is small it packs plenty of punch with a great layout. There is a modern bathroom and kitchen with the kitchen having all electric cooking and a double sink.

Externally there is a three bay shed or 12m x 7.3m shed with concrete floor plus a 1.5m roof awning.

There is power connected to the shed as well as a workbench. There is a large rainwater tank which supplies the kitchen and laundry.

A double lock-up tandem garage keeps the car safe with plenty of room to park 2 cars this makes a great space for storage as well.

This property is very neat and appealing to the buyer who wants a great property, great location so close to town and schools. ●

A SLICE OF HEAVEN

SPRING and summer are the perfect months for Mediterranean style cooking and alfresco dining, especially when you have a pizza oven in the backyard.

Pizza ovens are becoming popular additions to Australian backyards alongside the ubiquitous barbecue. Devotees of pizza ovens love the simplicity of authentic Italian-style pizzas, which can be healthy, quick to make and delicious.

Because the high heat generated in a wood fired pizza oven, food cooks extremely quickly making them great for feeding large groups of people. And only wood fired brick ovens infuse that smokey, charcoal flavour that can't be replicated in a normal kitchen oven.

There are a number of things to consider when choosing what sort of pizza oven is right for your home. Firstly, what material to use in constructing the oven.

Brick
Brick ovens are fuel efficient, as they retain up to 85 per cent of the heat generated by a wood fire. Bricks are also cheap making them a popular choice .

To get an authentic rustic look, the brick can be rendered in cement with the added benefit of retaining extra heat for faster cooking.

Stone
Stone has very similar heat efficiency to brick but it can be an expensive option. If you like the look of natural stone use it on the facade as decoration rather than using it for the baking chamber.

Cob
Cob is a mixture of natural building materials made from things such as clay, sand, straw, rocks and recycled materials. It is one of the oldest building methods on earth. A cob oven is cheap to construct and fuel efficient. It cooks with all three heating methods: convection, conduction and radiant heat.

Be careful to ensure the baking chamber is fired properly or it will crack. There is plenty of advice on the internet about how to construct a cob oven.

Steel
In modern homes stainless steel is a popular choice for pizza ovens. They are low maintenance and can be connected to gas as a fuel source eliminating the long heating time needed for wood fired models.

Portable oven
For those with a small backyard a portable pizza oven or even a bench top oven may be a better option. Portable ovens can be wood fired or gas powered. They can be moved out of the way when not in use or even taken to a park, the beach or a friend's house.

The other main consideration is which fuel to use to fire your pizza oven.

Wood
For purists wood is the only way to go. Wood fired is the authentic way of cooking used by humans for thousands of years. It can take up to four hours to get a wood fired oven to the correct temperature for cooking so patience and planning is required if you choose wood.

Charcoal/coal
Wood-fired ovens can also be fueled with either charcoal or coal for a different flavour, though these options are often considered to be less efficient, and less eco-friendly.

Gas/electric
More contemporary in style, a gas or electric pizza oven is a cleaner option, particularly for an indoor or enclosed kitchen. Gas is also faster but they do need to be connect to a mains supply or bottled gas. ●

Selwyn, Jocelyn, Lee-Anne, and David are keen to get some steaks sizzling.

Look at these marbled Tomahawks.

How good's your steak?

By Euan Morrisson

Come and sample some Wagyu steak: grown in Australia, graded in Japan.

The Phat Wag butcher retail outlet will be having a soft launch at Murgon from 10am to 3pm on 12 November.

Held at 15230 Bunya Highway just outside of Murgon, the opening will have beautifully marbled Wagyu produce to sample and purchase.

The Phat Wag is the brainchild of Selwyn and Jocelyn Maller, owners of Hamilton Park Wagyu.

They have a vertically integrated business.

This means they grow all their own fodder and trace their own animals from the embryo to the plate.

"We have the story of how they're produced," Selwyn said.

"We know the properties where they've grazed, where they've moved, all the systems in place. We can also give the date of birth of all our cattle."

The Wagyu marbling is graded in Japan via an app, taking photos of the eye muscle area, downloading them and within seconds the marble score is returned.

One of the best steaks Selwyn said he had ever eaten was a full-blood Wagyu, Tomahawk steak.

"We will actually have some for sale at the opening on the 12 November."

Selwyn has been breeding Wagyu beef for 25 years now.

With those years of experience, Selwyn knows the importance of the eating quality of the animals.

"In recent years we've won awards for our meat quality, so we're confident we now have a sustainable, predictable product to market under "The Phat Wag" brand."

When the old Goomeri butcher shop closed its doors, the Mallers saw it as a great opportunity to put down roots in the town.

Construction is now complete and they are open and ready for business.

In time to come, the Phat Wag will be opening a specialty butcher in Goomeri.

The butcher will sell a variety of proteins specialising in Wagyu products within a 3-hour drive from Brisbane and the Sunshine Coast.

"Goomeri has become a tourist precinct, with the local wineries, the bakery, the pumpkin festival, and newly opening boutique stores," he said.

"We will start selling online Australia-wide and have a future vision of exporting internationally."

"It will be fantastic and allow for customers to have that touristy feel to see the butcher's working."

For now though, the South Burnett has the opportunity to try some delicious mouth-watering Wagyu beef from their new retail butcher outlet at Murgon.

It was quite the nostalgic procession to deliver the statue to the memorial park.

Belgium amateur archaeologist Johan Vandewalle takes a moment with the statue of Jim and Jack Hunter.

The moving official inauguration ceremony on 25 September 2022 was well attended.

Archeologist Johan Vandewalle shares at the inauguration ceremony about his Brother's in Arms journey.

Inspiration from brothers

By Jessica McGrath

Did you know that around 2,800 pairs of Australian brothers died in World War I?

The inspiring story of a pair of Nanango brothers has inspired a war memorial in honour of these many Australian brothers who served together in the Great War.

The official inauguration of the Brothers in Arms Memorial Park was held on Sunday, 25 September at Zonnebeke in Belgium.

The team behind the project officially unveiled a bronze sculpture based on Nanango brothers John and Jim Hunter, who served with Australia's 49th Battalion.

Before the Australian-made sculpture arrived at the Belgium park, the team took a nostalgic tour of the Western Front with the soldier sculpture.

Hunter brother's story unearthed

Brothers from Nanango, S/N 3487A Private James 'Jim' Hunter and S/N 3504 Private John 'Jack' Hunter served with Australia's 49th Battalion. They were the sons of Harry and Emily Hunter of Nanango.

According to the Australian War Memorial, Pte John Hunter embarked from Sydney on HMAT Ayrshire on 24 January 1917, to serve with the Australian Imperial Force -leaving behind his job as a timber-getter at Nanango.

During September 1917, during the Battle of Polygon Wood, the elder of the two John was tragically hit by a mortar round. Despite his injuries, he managed to return to the trench where his brother and a mate stretchered him over a kilometre to the nearest dressing station.

John died on the Western Front in Belgium on 26 September 1917 and was carefully buried by his brother Jim. When he came back after the war to give his brother a proper burial, but was unable to relocate the remains.

It was not until 90 years later that his remains would be identified.

The bodies of five Australian soldiers were discovered by Belgium amateur archaeologist Johan Vandewalle in 2006 during a pipeline excavation near Westhoek, Belgium.

Two of the soldiers -Sergeant George Calder, 51st Battalion, and Private John Hunter were identified in 2007 through DNA analysis. A third soldier, Private George Richard Storey, was identified from further DNA testing in 2008.

All five of the discovered soldiers' remains were interred at Buttes New British Military Cemetery, Polygon Wood, Belgium.

The memory of finding the remains of John Hunter will always remain with Johan Vandewalle who has ever since worked tirelessly to build the 'Brothers-In-Arms Memorial near his Belgium cafe.

Mr Vandewalle told 'Sacred Grounds Tours', during a podcast interview, that John's body had not been thrown in the grave like the other four bodies discovered, rather it had been placed lovingly and carefully in the grave, unlike the other four bodies which were thrown in the grave. John had actually been wrapped in a groundsheet, his eyes weren't closed and his arms were crossed over his chest.

"He was protected under the ground sheet and he was preserved," he said.

"He had a full face under the rubber."

He worked with others from the local museum to remove the groundsheet bit by bit.

"When he saw daylight the sun was reflecting in his eyes because the sign of his eyes were still open... this was for me the most difficult part of the evidence," Mr Vandewalle said.

"I never knew this would happen -looking in the eye of a soldier and his grief and this all happened in September 2006."

A couple of years later at the reburial of the soldiers, Mr Vandewalle met the families of the soldiers. He later decided to fly over and meet more people from the soldier's families.

It was then that he met the family members of the Nanango brothers, John and James. He found out that James had told his family about his last moment with his brother.

16 years on from the initial discovery of the Australian soldiers, Mr Vandewalle was there this year when the statues first arrived and toured the Western Front and were officially unveiled at the Brother's in Arms inauguration ceremony on 25 September, 2022.

Brothers tour the Western Front

Before the statue of Jim and Jack Hunter arrived at the Belgium memorial park, they took a tour of the Western Front.

Belgian photographer Gregory Verfaillie captured the historic moments as the team behind the monument dressed up in Great War era-appropriate uniforms and travelled in vehicles reflective of the era to nostalgically deliver the statues.

"First they went under the Menin Gate, then later they stopped at the place where they were found," he said.

The group then arrived near Polygon Wood at a pub called 'De Dreve'.

The owner of the pub, Johan Vandewalle, was the man who had discovered the bodies of the five Australian soldiers in 2006.

"On these moments it gave me goosebumps and tears in my eyes," Mr Verfaillie recalled.

"That also counts for Johan -finally he could place the statue at the Brothers in Arms Memorial after such a long time."

A fitting memorial

Brothers in Arms Memorial Project Australia Committee member Kellie Dadds had the honour of attending the moving official inauguration ceremony on 25 September 2022.

"The ceremony was a very special occasion as it was a unique opportunity to undertake the pilgrimage of the many thousands of Australian families who lost two or more immediate family members in the war," she said.

"There was a strong international presence as well which reflected the significance of the memorial, and the occasion.

"The emotional connection between the locals who have been a part of this project and the memorial was also quite moving."

The Australian crew took the reins when it came to the sculpture with Melbourne-based sculptor Louis Laumen working on the bronze monument.

"The Australian contribution was largely centred on the Hunter Brothers bronze sculpture, so its arrival in Belgium and placement on the plinth was a beautiful conclusion of years of work," Ms Dadds said.

"There is still quite a bit of work required to fully complete the park, so I look forward to visiting it again in the future once it is completed."

The worldwide Covid-19 pandemic slowed the international effort to create the monument, delaying the Belgium park's progress as well as the sculpture's production in Melbourne.

"The complications created by Covid were the most difficult aspect to navigate through," Ms Dadds explained.

She has been inspired by the dedication, commitment and generosity displayed by so many.

"Working jointly with the team in Belgium was made easier by effective communication, understanding each other's role and having a burning passion to see the project succeed."

Ms Dodds shared that the story of the Hunter Brothers has inspired herself and others to research how many Australian families lost two or more immediate relatives in World War I.

"The Hunter brother's story in terms of Jack's discovery in 2006 is quite unique, but the tragedy of his death is not," she said.

"There were so many families from Australian and other Nations who had immediate relatives serving alongside each other.

"The introduction of the policy that ceased relatives serving in the same unit was only introduced later in the war."

To capture this history the Brothers in Arms team have created a register which currently includes over 2,700 families.

"The project still has some way to go, but hopefully it will prove useful as we continue to understand the true cost of war and Australia's experience," Ms Dodds said.

The Brothers in Arms Memorial Project Australia Committee gives their sincere thanks to everyone who has contributed to the project, especially the Hunter family.

Every cent donated, every social media post shared and encouragement along the journey contributed to its success and seeing the Brothers in Arms memorial park become a reality.

"As for the brother's being home, I personally feel that Australia is and always will be their home but seeing them reunited on the battlefield where they spent their last moments together felt like a fitting tribute to the brothers as well as the other families."

The Brothers In Arms Memorial can be found at Zonnebeke, Belgium.

TAFE looks to EV future

TAFE Queensland automotive apprentices will soon have the opportunity to be equipped as EV experts.

This Queensland-first electric vehicle training was officially launched on 2 November with more than 100 industry representatives in attendance to learn about the future of Queensland's automotive industry training.

The initiative will allow any automotive apprentice enrolled with TAFE Queensland the opportunity to elect to include four nationally recognised EV training units in their apprenticeship training plan at no extra cost to their employer.

A panel of industry experts including representatives from TAFE Queensland, Toyota, HESS Metro vehicles, and Heavy Vehicle Industry Australia participated in a Q and A session regarding the future of Queensland's automotive training.

Each panellist brought a different perspective on the industry to the launch and were all able to have productive, robust discussions about the future of skills training in Queensland.

They all agreed on the importance of TAFE Queensland making EV units available as part of automotive apprenticeship training plans.

Whilst other training organisations are offering the units as extra study to be completed and paid for after an apprenticeship, TAFE Queensland are the first to include them in the elective units on offer for the apprenticeship itself.

The initiative forms part of TAFE Queensland's 'training lifecycle' plan for EV skills.

The plan aims to service industry workers at all points of their career lifecycle, offering the units to apprentices and in a specialised unit cluster for qualified mechanics.

TAFE Queensland – SkillsTech General Manager, John Tucker, said the plan was part of TAFE Queensland's commitment to industry.

"The training lifecycle plan caters for apprentices of the past, present, and future to upskill Queensland's automotive industry quickly in the face of the fast-changing automotive landscape."

"TAFE Queensland's ability to offer these units to apprentice all over our great state, from Coolangatta to Cairns and as far west as Mt Isa, sets us apart and enables us to service the automotive industry in all areas of Queensland."

"We are in constant contact with industry to ensure we are delivering on their needs for today and for the future," Mr Tucker continued, going on to detail the training on offer for qualified mechanics in Queensland.

Attendees were treated to a tour of locally available EVs on the market including the wide range of hybrid and battery electric vehicles that live at TAFE Queensland specifically for skills training. Pictures: TAFE QUEENSLAND

David Cooper, the Toyota Australia Manager of Technical Operations (Northern Region) shares his industry wisdom.

"To help the Queensland automotive industry quickly and efficiently upskill its existing workforce, TAFE Queensland have launched a training cluster for mechanics to complete four nationally accredited units in one training block."

The first on-campus running of the unit cluster began on 31 October, with a mixture of light and heavy automotive mechanics making up most of the sold-out class.

TAFE Queensland included two of their own teachers in the class to ensure there are an abundance of teachers ready to deliver the popular units.

A full class of 14 qualified mechanics were undertaking the third day of the pilot on 2 November, when launch attendees visited TAFE Queensland's EV training facilities to watch the training in action.

Students epitomized the new wave of mechanics in Queensland challenging current stereotypes, which panellist David Cooper, Toyota Australia Manager of Technical Operations (Northern Region), said was key to the changing landscape of the industry.

"Servicing is evolving, there will be less changing of oil and more checking computers have the latest files," he said.

"We need to change the way the automotive trade is seen, to be one that people with math and science skills are interested in and aspiring to."

TAFE Queensland's training fleet includes all manner of vehicles from sedans to excavators, and consists of hybrid and battery electric vehicles from multiple manufacturers.

BP Dam grant makes a splash

South Burnett Regional Council has been successful in winning a $50,000 grant from the Queensland government's Tourism Experience Development Fund to boost visitor stays at Bjelke-Petersen Dam.

The funds will supplement Council capital expenditure of $150,000 to improve facilities at the Dam, including nine new split air-conditioners into cabins, the upgrade of the kiosk and eatery and painting the manager's residence, nine 6mx6mx2.4m Colourbond bolt-down carports, and a new shower area in the accommodation/conference facility.

Tourism Portfolio Councillor Jane Erkens described the upgrades as "important to develop a new customer experience to complement existing infrastructure and to increase the number of nights a customer stays."

"This funding together with the Council's commitment will assist in developing a niche market focused on corporate retreats in a natural location," Cr Erkens said.

"We have to use the South Burnett's own natural advantages to attract visitors to stay longer. This project will facilitate targeting corporate customers to invest in the same natural retreat that is currently enjoyed by recreational caravan, camping and fishing enthusiasts."

The project will be delivered by the Commercial Enterprise team, closely supported by Council's property team.

Work is expected to begin in March 2023 and be completed by August 2023.

It's hard to imagine that three years ago we were all in the middle of a raging drought - and now here we are, wanting the rain to stop for winter harvest, hay production and summer crop plantings to proceed.

One grass crop consideration for summer is our various millet crops. These small-seeded, quick-maturing summer crops are ideal for double cropping or changeover crop options.

They don't like cold soils as in below 15 degrees Celsius too much at planting times, however our still very wet soils will certainly allow a shallower planting situation for millet seed.

Burying millet seed down to 75 millimetres in our soils is not the best idea for much emergence.

Our best grain type variety options are White French, Red Panicum, and Panorama whilst dual-purpose ones are Japanese and Shirohie, with the various pearl millets best for the grazing sense.

They can all be grazed, however the ones above are the best for the purpose.

As always with all summer crops: before you plant a seed, you need to determine what the end market is doing for your crop after you harvest it. Millet is no different - check first about the dollars per tonne you could receive after harvest or consider whether you may need to store it for some time to achieve best returns.

A very recent quote from a local Darling Downs marketing company suggested around $650.00 per tonne to the farmer for White French and Panorama seed - and that was export market. Also consider the local birdseed market needs to be filled; I must confess I have not observed too many millet crops around southern Queensland at this stage of the summer.

In regards to weed control, the only setback is not being able to apply an effective residual grass control herbicide like metolachlor.

Planting on narrower row spacing like 25 centimetres along with a good even strike can really put the brakes on grass weeds like Feather Top Rhodes and Barnyard grass. Yet, for broadleaf weeds, we have a few handy herbicides like Starane Advanced to deal with any broadleaf weeds, which depending on the millet type can then be mixed with lighter rates of atrazine.

The older 24-D herbicide can also be applied at light rates onto some species of millet crop, however please check labels or consult your agronomist before making any in-crop herbicide decisions.

Direct harvesting is still performed and of course the swathing or windrowing of uneven millet crops does occur.

Millet is not a bad crop choice at this time of the year, and of course we in the northern farming regions of Australia highly value the stubble that millets can leave on your paddocks for future fallow blocks.

Council on alert after another pest breach

By Julian Lehnert

Just weeks after dealing with the outbreak of an invasive plant species, the North Burnett is now on alert for yet another biosecurity breach, with the restricted chinee apple found at Philpott last week.

A total of ten shrubs of ziziphus mauritania, which is known by the names chinee apple or Indian jujubee, were spotted by North Burnett Regional Council land protection crews on the banks of the Burnett River earlier this month, according to a notice by Council sent out to landholders on 3 November.

The category 3 restricted invasive plant is native to southern Asia and eastern Africa and was first discovered in north Queensland in the 1860s, where it was found to have a significant impact on stock movement and pasture quality.

According to the Queensland Government's Department of Agriculture and Fisheries, chinee apple is usually found as a large shrub or small spreading tree, growing up to eight metres tall.

The plant's branches are dense, zig-zag shaped, with leaves and thorns at each angle; the leaves can be easily identified by their round shape, glossy top and pale white underside.

The fruits of the plant are 2.5 centimetres in diameter, green while unripe and pale yellow to orange when ripe.

"[Chinee apple] spreads along watercourses and grows into dense stands on dry exposed hillsides," a DAF infosheet states.

"Stands of chinee apple grow as open forests or form thorny thickets along waterways. Mature trees produce large quantities of fruit that are readily eaten by stock, feral pigs, wallabies and birds, which assists the spread of the seed.

"[The plant] creates impenetrable thickets that seriously hamper stock management, [reducing] pasture production and accessibility."

According to the Department, landholders must be aware of their obligation to manage the spread and impacts of chinee apple on their properties; this includes a ban on giving away, selling or releasing the plant into the environment.

"Chinee apple is a category 3 restricted invasive plant under the Biosecurity Act 2014," a spokesperson for the North Burnett Regional Council said in regards to the plant's discovery in the region.

"The Act requires everyone to take all reasonable and practical measures to minimise the biosecurity risks associated with invasive plants under their control, to meet their general biosecurity obligation.

"If you believe you have chinee apple or would like to confirm if a plant is chinee apple or not, please contact our friendly Land Protection staff for assistance."

The chinee apple discovery comes just weeks after the invasive plant fireweed was found on properties in both the North and South Burnett regions.

Landholders can find out more about chinee apple on the Business Queensland website via: fal.cn/3thmy

Muster music fans mingle with artists

By Jessica McGrath

Murgon Music Muster was a chance for country music fans to mingle with the artists themselves.

The 2022 event held from 2 to 6 November at the Murgon Showgrounds was welcomed back by all attendees after its covid hiatus.

Feature acts included multi Golden Guitar winning Australian singer-songwriters Amber Lawrence and Adam Harvey.

Muster returns with a bang

By Julian Lehnert

Murgon's annual Music Muster returned last week after a three-year hiatus.

The five-day event at Murgon's PCYC hall saw close to a dozen artists and hundreds of visitors come together for a week packed with country music, bush poetry and dancing.

Check out a selection of photos from the official opening day on Friday, 4 November, below.

Kids in concert: Young join in on country music fun

By Julian Lehnert

Multi-Golden Guitar award winner Amber Lawrence had the Burnett's schoolchildren hanging on her every word and note.

Ahead of her appearance at the Murgon Music Muster on Friday, 4 November, the Sydney-based country music singer-songwriter visited Murgon's State High School for a special kids-only performance, which was attended by students from surrounding Windera, Wheatlands, Cloyna, Wondai and Murgon schools.

Ms Lawrence brought her mix of uplifting contemporary country originals and some crowd-favourite covers to her set at the MSHS multipurpose hall, inviting the scores of attending students to sing, clap and dance along.

Gala to support LifeFlight

By Jessica McGrath

Yellow and royal blue balloons and table runners around the Kingaroy Town Hall gave a nod to the gala's cause.

RACQ LifeFlight rescue supporters gathered at the hall on Saturday, 5 November for the LifeFlight Gala Dinner.

Supporters enjoyed live music from Ryza, a meal from The Saucy Fork and participated in silent auctions to further raise funds for LifeFlight.

This was all thanks to an organising committee of two -Susan Robertson and Danita Potter.

"We're ecstatic -it went really well, the atmosphere was great, the people were great, they all dug deep," Ms Robertson said.

They had around 150 people attend thanks to some last minute tickets sold.

LifeFlight representatives Alisha Clarkson and Karen McIntyre were there on the night to thank the supporters.

"It's huge to put together an event which relies so heavily on community support," Ms Clarkson said.

It takes $25,000 on average to fund one RACQ LifeFlight rescue mission.

Government funding only accounts for 65 per cent of the funding LifeFlight needs.

"The community getting together tonight helps towards that 35 per cent funding shortfall," Ms Clarkson said.

LifeFlight paramedic Craig Blick was invited along as the guest speaker to share about the hard work LifeFlight does.

"It hit home, what they have to do," Ms Robertson said.

"It was very interesting to listen to."

At the time Burnett Today went to print, the LifeFlight Gala team were still counting up the donations but anticipate they may reach around the $10,000 mark.

"A massive thank you to all of the sponsors and people who donated the raffle items and all those who came," Ms Robertson said.

Remembering 'Mop' Conlon

By Julian Lehnert

When Dennis 'Mop' Conlon wrote the protest song 'Brisbane Blacks' in 1982, responding to the First Nations peoples' struggle for rights and recognition in a troubled time, he sowed the seeds that would catapult his band Mop and The Dropouts to nationwide fame.

The 'King of Murri Country' passed away in Rockhampton between 18 and 19 September 2022, aged 66, with hundreds of family members, friends, supporters and fans turning out to attend a funeral service in his honour on 7 October.

Mourners made the trip to Rockhampton's Baptist Tabernacle from Brisbane, Mount Isa, and Mop's home town of Cherbourg, with the singer's younger brother, Pastor Max Conlon, giving a speech honouring the music great's life and achievements.

"Whenever there was a funeral, Mop was always the last to come in. He liked a grand entrance, so he's still getting us even now," Pastor Conlon joked.

"Mop was a man of humour and wisdom. He loved his culture and values - he knew a lot about Country and history. He was good at anything he put his hands on.

"He was an absolute champion to many people, family, friends, and the music industry across Australia.

"He had a great heart, great abilities, and never kept them to himself - he always shared them.

"Mop used his gift of music to bring peace, unity, and hope.

"He's left big boots to fill - a big legacy for us.

"Mop and [bandmate Angus] Rabbitt will be singing up a storm up there," he concluded.

To honour Mop's love for music, the congregation gathered throughout the funeral service to play and sing a number of songs - including his favourite, the Christian hymn 'The Old Rugged Cross.'

Family friend Steve Mitchell gave a heartfelt eulogy to Uncle Mop.

"Mop has had an extraordinary life; the effect he has had across the community nationally is almost hard to quantify," Mr Mitchell said.

"He galvanised the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community in a time of political change; he's touched thousands and thousands of lives.

"He was his happiest on the road, touring for crowds of adoring people. Mop toured until the last minute.

"He always did it for people to feel good, have a purpose, and feel united.

"The songs Mop and The Dropouts played unified everybody - they talk to a period of time, inspire the future and bring about social change.

"We honour him as a phenomenal musician. So many of his songs were and are anthems for the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community," he added.

"Mop was also a father figure to many.

"He had a unique ability to make everybody feel like they were the most important person in the room.

"His passing left a huge hole in our hearts, but we should think ourselves lucky to have known him and can be comforted by the legacy of love, life and laughter he left behind."

Family members put together a slideshow send-off for Mop, featuring a collection of photos taken across the decades set to Frank Sinatra's 'My Way.'

At the end of the ceremony, Mop's family got together to sing his anthem 'Brisbane Blacks'.

The musician's funeral service was a celebration of his life, legacy and sound, with family members gathering to sing several times. 307168

The Cherbourg singer-songwriter became a nationwide icon for his anthemic coverage of Indigenous rights protests in the 1980s.

For his contributions to the First Nations music scene, 'Mop' was awarded the 2022 QMusic Lifetime Achievement Award in March of this year.

One-time 'Dropout', drummer Hedley Johnson, praised the band's leader as a cultural icon.

"Mop is an icon and is loved and respected in both black and white communities in the Australian music industry," he said.

"Through his music he has become a leader and fighter for Indigenous rights for us all; I am very proud of his many achievements and proud to be a Dropout forever.

"I loved him dearly and will miss him. Mop and The Dropouts... his music will live on forever."

Dennis 'Mop' Conlon passed away in September this year, aged just 66. 307168

Students are on the pace

By Jessica McGrath

Armed with a cheer, school students took over Wondai Park-Fun for the morning.

The students from St John's Lutheran School Kingaroy took on the various volunteer roles at Wondai parkrun last Saturday, 5 November.

Zoe Andersen had the important job of bar-code scanning, but also took some photos and did some cheerleading as the runners came across the finish line.

"It was really fun - I got to spend time with my friends," Zoe said.

"Having fun - that's the best thing about it. "I think it should be called 'ParkFun!'"

The students ranging from Kindy to Years 2, 4, 5 and 7 split the morning's responsibilities between them.

Some donned the new parkwalker bib while others took photographs, cheered the park-runners at the mid-way point and recorded the individual parkrunner times.

"It was perfect," the day's Run Director, Ava Stevens said.

"I couldn't have imagined something better. "I love parkrun and I love school."

They first led the parkrunners and park-walkers through some stretches before delivering the update about the track and various instructions.

Then as the parkrunners set off, the students went about their own jobs.

"Being a Run Director was really fun," Ava said.

She had even come up with a cheer especially for the parkrunners as they finished the 5 kilometre course:

"You're so strong, even though the track is so long.

"Just push so you don't end up in the bush. "You're so good that it's true, just don't end up with a hole in your shoe."

Charlotte English was the official timekeeper for the day.

"It was really nice," she said.

"I got to spend time with my friends." Meanwhile, Harry Tompson took on lots of roles.

"I liked helping out with the jobs and to get to see what the adults do," he said.

"I'd help out again."

Megan Jorgensen, who did photos and scanning barcodes, agreed.

"I got to meet new people and to have a good chat," she said.

"I have helped out before and will again."

Students handed out barcodes to record each of the participants' times. 307088

Jordyn during her winning round at the Kenilworth Rodeo in the open barrel race.

Sitting tall in the saddle

By Euan Morrisson

Kingaroy's Jordyn O'Toole has won the junior barrel race four-day Warwick Rodeo's Gold cup.

The Warwick Rodeo was held from 24 to 30 October.

O'Toole is in grade 10, but she hasn't let that stop her from taking titles.

She has taken out the open barrel race at the Kenilworth rodeo, placed in the Crows Nest open ladies' event, and came fourth at the recent Wandowan Rodeo.

One could almost say she was born for it, having been in the saddle since she was two years old.

There's a lot to like about the rodeo events O'toole said.

"I enjoy getting to compete with my horse as a team, meeting new people and having fun," she said

"It's what I like to do."

O'Toole rides on two horses, Cat and Cougar.

They're a pair of calm and friendly horses O'Toole said.

"I love everything about them, they're very fast, they care of me, and they're honest."

O'Toole said that what makes a good rider is really all in the mindset.

"Staying humble and focused and not let the pressure get to you."

"When you're on top of the leaderboard it's hard to stay focussed and get the job done."

Looking to the future, O'Toole sees no signs of stopping.

"I want to keep going with it, learn new things, and improve myself."

Jordyn keeps her focus at the Crow's Nest Rodeo where she placed in the open ladies' event.

Saint Mary’s earns honours

By Julian Lehnert

The future of sport in the South Burnett is well and truly alive, with several students at Saint Mary’s Catholic College in Kingaroy making names for themselves after competing in regional and state events last month.

Saint Mary’s students Taine Strong, Benji Lipsett, Nicholas Howard, Joseph Carney, Jamie Searle and Riley Kerkow entered in a number of events at the Queensland School State Championships in Brisbane, Wide Bay School Boys Cricket in Rockhampton, and Little Athletics in the Burnett in October.

At just 11 years old, Taine Strong is already taking on competitors several years his senior.

The young athlete represented the Wide Bay region at the 10-12-year-old Track and Field State Championships in Brisbane in the middle of October, being the only boy from the South Burnett at the event.

Taine was one of just two Wide Bay competitors at the 1,500-metre run event, with his 05:04.10 personal best even beating out runners a few age groups above him.

“I guess I was just determined to do well, because last year I attempted to compete for Wide Bay in cross country but sadly didn’t make it,” Taine explained.

“So, this year, I was really determined to prove that I could go perform at these levels. I achieved that this year and I’m really happy!”

Taine’s achievements in track and field, cross country and Little Athletics events - where he won a gold medal in the 1,500m run over the recent school holidays - have earned him his school’s Junior Sportsman of the Year award.

However, the young gun is not stopping there: he has his eyes set on greater glory.

Sports fans might one day see Taine in an Australian jersey at the Olympics, with the 11-year-old hoping to qualify for the ‘You for 2032’ talent scout program when it returns to the Burnett next year.

“For next year, one of my goals is definitely to wear a Queensland uniform,” he declared.

Taine’s fellow schoolmates also have a number of impressive achievements to be proud of.

Battling a strong headwind, 12-year-old Benji Lipsett ran a personal best of 00:12.36 at the Queensland School State Championships’ 100m sprint last month, also coming 17th in the 200m event.

Nicholas Howard (15) competed in the 800m run and discus throw at the Championships alongside 16-year-old Riley Kerkow, who entered in javelin and cross country.

Riley was also named Saint Mary’s Sportsman of the Year for the highest number of overall “merit points” earned by competing at sporting events throughout the school year.

Joseph Carney attended the Wide Bay School Boys Cricket competition in Rockhampton in October, with Saint Mary’s staff praising his “confident and competent” batting efforts.

Jamie Searle, who competes in cross country, has been instrumental in his local Little Athletics competition, where he has entered and excelled in every single discipline.

Saint Mary’s Catholic College sports coordinator Susan Marnie said she was overjoyed with her students’ strong results and dedication to their work.

“I’m extremely proud of all the people doing sport here at Saint Mary’s, and how they represent the school,” she said.

“I can see some future Olympians here!”

Test for Isabella

By Jessica McGrath

A young Wondai cricket player is preparing to face some of the nation's best.

Isabella Eisenmenger, 12, played for the South Burnett regional school team earlier this year and was the region's sole player to make the Wide Bay cut.

At a state trials session in October, she was captain of the Wide Bay team when she was again the only player from her Wide Bay team to make the Queensland side.

Picked as an all-rounder for Queensland, Isabella is now preparing to play in the 10-12 year-old Girls National Cricket Exchange in Ballarat, Victoria this month.

"I'm kind of nervous - but it's exciting," she said.

"I just can't wait to play against the best girls [in cricket] across Australia."

From 16 to 18 November, Isabella will take part in a training camp in Ipswich where she will learn to play alongside her new team mates before heading along to the Ballarat National Exchange, which will be held from 19 to 26 November.

Not part of any local clubs, Isabella has been practicing hard with her dad at the old Wondai cricket nets.

"This experience will set her up for the next level and build her confidence," Isabella's dad Mark said.

Her role being an 'all-rounder', the cricket star-in-the-making has been honing her natural skills as a batter and working hard on her bowling.

Isabella and her family have been overwhelmed by the support they've received on a GoFundMe page (bit.ly/3FOCbqF), with the South Burnett community and fellow local cricket players having raised over $1,600 as of writing to help the Wondai girl travel to Ballarat.
