Good times mount up at the show

By Jessica McGrath

Mundubbera had a great time celebrating their community at their annual show.

The three-day show of festivities was held last weekend with events ranging from campdraft and the 'extreme horseman trial to stud cattle competitions and sideshow alley fun.

Biosecurity concerns have Council pull the plug on washdown facility

Site is a wash

By Julian Lehnert

Almost one year after it was first made aware of a range of issues regarding a washdown facility at Mundubbera, the North Burnett Regional Council has decided to close the amenity down until further notice.

At a 26 April meeting, NBRC councillors debated a report on the facility on Jack Parr Street near the Mundubbera Airport, hearing that, in its current state, the washdown site posed "extensive biosecurity issues" and "environmental risks" should it continue to operate.

As a result of this discussion, the facility was closed immediately and indefinitely, with Council now investigating their next course of action.

However, one North Burnett councillor was not satisfied with the lengthy review process, alleging the issue was known to the NBRC for far longer.

Sashes on at Mundubbera

By Julian Lehnert

In the midst of the 102nd annual Country Show, Mundubbera crowned the event's representatives just after noon on Friday 5 May.

A total of five positions were awarded to a group of young locals, with a sash and bouquet of flowers going out to a Showgirl, Rural Ambassador, Young Master of the Show, Junior Showgirl and Juvenile Showgirl each.

An organiser for the Show told assembled onlookers that, due to a massive influx of nominations in this year's Showgirl circuit, the Show Society had decided to split the Junior category into two separate competitions, giving rise to the Juvenile Showgirl position.

Mundubbera's 2023 Rural Ambassador is Issi Kassulke, a nurse at the local hospital who has been involved in her town's show for many years.

"I used to sit at the gate with my dad every Friday morning from 5am until lunchtime," Ms Kassulke told the crowd at her sashing.

The long-time local said she had no thoughts of leaving the beautiful North Burnett any time soon.

"I love the little community that we have and think it's very important that we continue to support the local Show," she said.

Mundubbera's 2023 Showgirl is Flynn Suendermann, a Biggenden-born expert in the cattle scene.

Ms Suendermann also serves as the Show's stud cattle section steward, a position she re-pressed after taking it on in 2022.

"I've always been really involved with shows, I've got a real passion for them," Ms Suendermann said about herself.

After this year's successful show, Ms Suendermann hopes to make waves in the Burnett sub-chamber Showgirl circuit.

"I'm really looking forward to representing Mundubbera this year at the sub-chamber!" she said.

After the sashing, the Mundubbera Show continued for another day, ending on Saturday, 6 May.

The editor's desk BurnettToday

Welcome to the paper for another week dear reader.

In this paper, you'll find lots of show content.

Lots and lots of show coverage.

On pages 9-11, you'll find some coverage of the Eidsvold Show that our news editor Jess McGrath put together from her trip to the North Burnett.

On page 47 you'll find a preview of the upcoming Blackbutt Show.

We also have a bit of coverage from the Kingaroy show too.

Some general happy snap social photos can be found on pages 56 and 57.

The final event of the Kingaroy Show, its bull ride is on pages 61 and 62.

I was lucky enough to be the journalist working this weekend.

I attended the Kingaroy Show and rodeo, the Thrashers home game, and the Burrandowan races.

I got to have lots of interesting chats and be entertained through most of my weekend.

The only downside was having to rush from one event to the next.

This made it difficult to be thorough at any one of the events- except Burrandowan which was the last event of Saturday so I could spend a bit more time there.

I would've definitely liked to spend a bit more time at the show and at the rugby.

The Kingaroy show is a big one and you can spend hours there, easily.

It would've been nice to have a few more chats, and run into a few more people, but that's how it goes and I had to rocket over the road to the Thrashers' home game.

What a game it was, I was only there for most of the first half but it was some great entertainment.

After the thrashers got the first try of the game down, the Emus retaliated with their own try and I was keen to see how the rest of the game went.

Seeing this I was reminded of playing club football as a kid.

In one particular season, whenever our team was first to score a goal, we would go on to lose the game.

What a charming memory.
Enjoy the paper.

Gifts between the ages

By Euan Morrisson

Students worked tirelessly and enthusiastically to create a beautiful piece of art for the Elders.

Ny-Ku Byun Aged Care, the retirement home in Cherbourg have been gifted a stunning wall mount courtesy of Silver Lining School- Ficks Crossing and Bloom Into You by Felicity J Aitken.

On Thursday, 27 April, some of the students who had been working on the piece handed over the piece to the retirement home.

One of the students who worked on the wall mount, Laticia Bond, said the piece used native and indigenous plants as a representation of the land and First Nations culture.

Ny-Ku Byun Aged Care resident, Auntie Pansey Colonel, said she liked the colours of the piece.

"It's pretty as... I really like the pink and yellow," Auntie Pansey said.

Jo Campbell is the school's principal.

She said they had discussed what they wanted to do with the decoration, and decided to gift it to the retirement home.

"Hopefully from this, we'll start to have some more of a connection so that we can build a relationship," the principal said.

The piece was created by students from the school with the guidance of Felicity J Aitken, a Murgon florist.

Recently the school had got in contact with

Felicity about doing some floristry workshops, to which Felicity was happy to oblige.

"I've been learning just as much as they have," Felicity said.

The students have also worked on other pieces with Felicity, including wreaths for Anzac Day.

The partnerships between Felicity J Aitken, Silver Linings School, and the Cherbourg community are expected to continue with future projects in the works.

Kerb and channelling budget still on the council table

By Julian Lehnert

The South Burnett council has assuaged fears it may be slashing its kerb and channelling funding allocations in the upcoming budget, assuring residents the crucial road upgrade works are still on the menu where they are needed most.

The purported lack of funds assigned to kerb and channelling works first raised eyebrows during the 'Questions on Notice' section of council's 3 May meeting, in which councillor Kirstie Schumacher inquired about the amount of money earmarked for the practice in the 23/24 budget.

Council's response - that the draft 23/24 kerb and channel renewal program currently has an allocation of $0, down from 22/23's $217,350 - was followed up with the explanation that funding for projects like footpaths, pavements and other infrastructure works has to get re-prioritised every budget period.

However, despite the allocation amount reading a paltry $0 at present, a spokesperson for the South Burnett Regional Council said there may yet be some money allocated to the project stream.

"Council has not 'axed' its kerb and channelling budget and at this stage Council is still drafting its budget for the 2023/24 financial year," the SBRC spokesperson explained.

"In some years Council may allocate more funding to a particular program and less to others, where Council may have a focus on targeting assets on a strategic basis.

"[A]s is the case for 2023/24, Council has a significant program allocation for works to target its rural and urban road network in conjunction with its flood damage reconstruction, and Council has been successful in partnering its funds with the Queensland Government's State Transport Infrastructure Program to deliver over $1.2 million in 6 safety upgrades across the regions schools.

"Requests for new kerb and channel works are considered with all upgrade requests such as sealing gravel roads and can require significant design and cost review, usually because they need pavement and stormwater works," they added.

Indeed, councillors already heard of a number of kerb and channelling projects the region's community would like to see completed in the 2023/24 budget period, with the 3 May meeting pitching locations like North Street in Kingaroy, Elk Street in Nanango, and Sutton Street in Blackbutt - projected to cost a total of $819,000.

When asked by Burnett Today whether large-scale CBD and parks projects such as the Kingaroy Transformation Project and the recently-announced Kingaroy Memorial Park rebuild were being prioritised over kerb and channelling works, Council was adamant to the contrary.

"Council does not consider its CBD and Parks projects 'vanity' projects, and in recent years, Council has completed a number of CBD and parks projects across the region focusing on replacing its ageing infrastructure and upgrading assets to achieve key community-driven priorities (...)," a spokesperson for the SBRC stated.

"These projects have significant asset works including replacement of failing or aging infrastructure including roads, footpaths, stormwater, water mains, [and] kerbing whilst updating these assets to modern standards to enable community outcomes both now and into the future," they added.

"[T]he major parks project in Memorial Park is planned to be delivered over a long period of time as funding is achieved and Council has taken a planned and coordinated approach."

Crisis call to empty cop shop

By Julian Lehnert

CONTENT WARNING: This story deals with matters of suicide. Reader discretion is advised.

The Queensland Police Service have defended the absence of Kingaroy officers during a critical incident on 8 April, when a healthcare worker preparing to end his life was faced with an empty station and no one left to turn to.

On Thursday 4 May, The Kingaroy Magistrates Court heard the matter of a male in his late forties - whose identity will not be disclosed to protect his privacy - charged with a count of firing a weapon in a public place.

The court headed by magistrate Andrew Sinclair heard that, at around 10:30pm on Saturday 8 April, the man, who suffers from depression and post-traumatic stress disorder, experienced a bout of suicidal ideation which led him to prepare to take his own life.

The man, who had reportedly been a critical care nursing worker for 25 years, took his gun, a .303 calibre bolt-action rifle, to the Kingaroy Police Station in an effort to turn it in and seek help for his worsening mental state.

However, the court heard that his attempts to alert the local police force to his condition were unsuccessful, as the station was unattended at the time.

The accused then resolved to carry out his plan to die by suicide, driving up to a nearby lookout where he prepared to shoot himself.

However, after deciding against the act, and in an attempt to ensure he could not harm himself any further, the man discharged the rifle into the forested area surrounding the lookout.

He then returned to the Kingaroy Police Station, where he could at last rouse officers and access help.

The accused was detained, had his gun seized and was then placed under mental health supervision before being released the next day.

The Kingaroy Police Station (pictured) was unattended when a suicidal local came seeking help.

Picture: CONTRIBUTED

His case before the Kingaroy Magistrates Court led to a good behaviour bond set at $500, the suspension of his gun license, and a direction to sell his rifle by 1 July lest it be forfeited to the authorities, with police prosecutor Barry Stevens calling the matter one of “tragic circumstances.”

In a statement to Burnett Today, a spokesperson for the Queensland Police Service defended Kingaroy officers for their absence during the man’s plea for help, claiming police always treated matters of life and death as a priority.

“Urgent and life-threatening calls for service will always be treated as a priority by Kingaroy Police,” the spokesperson stated.

“As such, officers from the Kingaroy Police Station responded within ten minutes to this incident and were able to provide access to professional health care,” they continued, ignoring the fact that the man’s first appearance at the station was not answered whatsoever, which directly led to his suicide attempt.

“This incident clearly reflects the QPS’s commitment to providing a service to the Kingaroy community and keeping the community safe,” they claimed.

The QPS spokesperson stated that, due to the ongoing adoption of an “agile policing approach”, the concerning absence of officers at their respective stations may continue.

“The Queensland Police Service regularly reviews a range of issues including service demand, available resources, officer safety, emerging crime trends and population growth to ensure optimum service delivery across the South Burnett region,” they explained.

“The Service is continuing to adopt an agile and borderless policing approach enriched with technology where officers are no longer restricted to a static location.

“This means regardless of where a front-line officer may be based, they will spend the majority of their shift out in the community, responding to calls for service and patrolling the area.”

Solar farm's timber gift

By Julian Lehnert

Kingaroy Solar Farm owners Mytilineos are making good on their promise to support local community groups, with a half-tonne load of reclaimed timber from the building site now in the hands of a class of TAFE construction students.

The trailer load of wood - one hundred planks all up - arrived at the Kingaroy TAFE campus on Wednesday, 3 May, where it was well-received by a group of eager builders-in-the-making.

Robert Gardiner, Mytilineos' Community Engagement and Environment Officer, organised the drop-off and personally delivered the wood.

Mr Gardiner explained the timber is a by-product of the solar farm's construction process, where it is used to shield large cable drums from light and damage.

Once the cable is needed on-site, the timber is stripped from the drums, where it is then of no further use to the builders; Mr Gardiner explained that, rather than discard the still useable wood, he thought it would be more sustainable to offer it to local community groups instead.

So far, Mytilineos have delivered seven loads of timber to various organisations around the region, including the Kingaroy State High School, the Kingaroy Men's Shed, and South Burnett Care.

According to figures provided by Mytilineos, the timber donations have saved the community groups an estimated $6,000 in material costs, while also reducing the company's own waste disposal costs by approximately $95.

"The timber is perfect for anything you want - your imagination is the limit!" Mr Gardiner said at the Kingaroy TAFE on 3 May.

Construction student Ebony helps unload the trailer-load of timber. 333930

At TAFE, the donated timber is used by students in the construction classes to learn the ropes of the trade; already, the influx of useable wood has resulted in a number of sturdy chairs, handcrafted by the capable builders-in-training.

"I took a couple of the kids' chairs home for them, and the parents were raving about the things their kids did [with the timber]," construction teacher Mick Scott said.

"They think it's magnificent that the kids get the opportunity to do this sort of stuff," he added.

"This [donation agreement] is really going to offer us the opportunity to do more community projects - our students will be able to make picnic tables, for instance," Evalyn Thompson, TAFE Kingaroy's Business Development Officer, said of the donation.

"It'll really broaden their horizons," she added.

"I think another important thing here is that the kids are learning to how to use recycled wood, to be sustainable and give back to their community."

Powerlink route pushback

By Euan Morrisson

The landholders of over 1000 properties will be affected by the two announced Powerlink transmission line corridors.

In light of the released Draft Corridor Selection Report (CSR), people gathered in the Kilkivan Town Hall to discuss the issue with a Queensland Police Service presence to keep the peace.

Katy McCallum, spokesperson of the Kilkivan Action Group stated that people at the meeting simply didn't want the powerlines.

"We don't want them, didn't ask for them, and don't see why we should carry the weight and the burden, for the fact that the city can't control their power consumption," Ms McCallum said

The second issue raised was that if the organised effort to lock gates and not allow Powerlink onto private property was to continue, would Powerlink use statutory authority to force their way onto private property.

"They [Powerlink representatives] didn't answer that question."

In a previous conversation Burnett Today had with Ms McCallum, she pointed to several issues with the project including the impact on recreational use of Borumba Lake, and the threat to biosecurity for farmers.

"They've fought hard to keep the declared pests off, spent 10s of thousands of dollars... but the second they turn up [Powerlink] there'll be heaps of weeds," Ms McCallum.

In response to concerns about biosecurity, Powerlink Executive General Manager Delivery and Technical Solutions Ian Lowry said Powerlink had made commitments and protocols to land access that can be viewed on their website in a 24-page document.

The guiding principles of the Land Access Protocol are planning, investigation and acquisition (schedule 1), which moves onto construction (schedule 2), which moves onto maintenance and operation (schedule 3), and agreed property-specific information, rule and entry conditions (schedule 4) that sits outside of the other three principles.

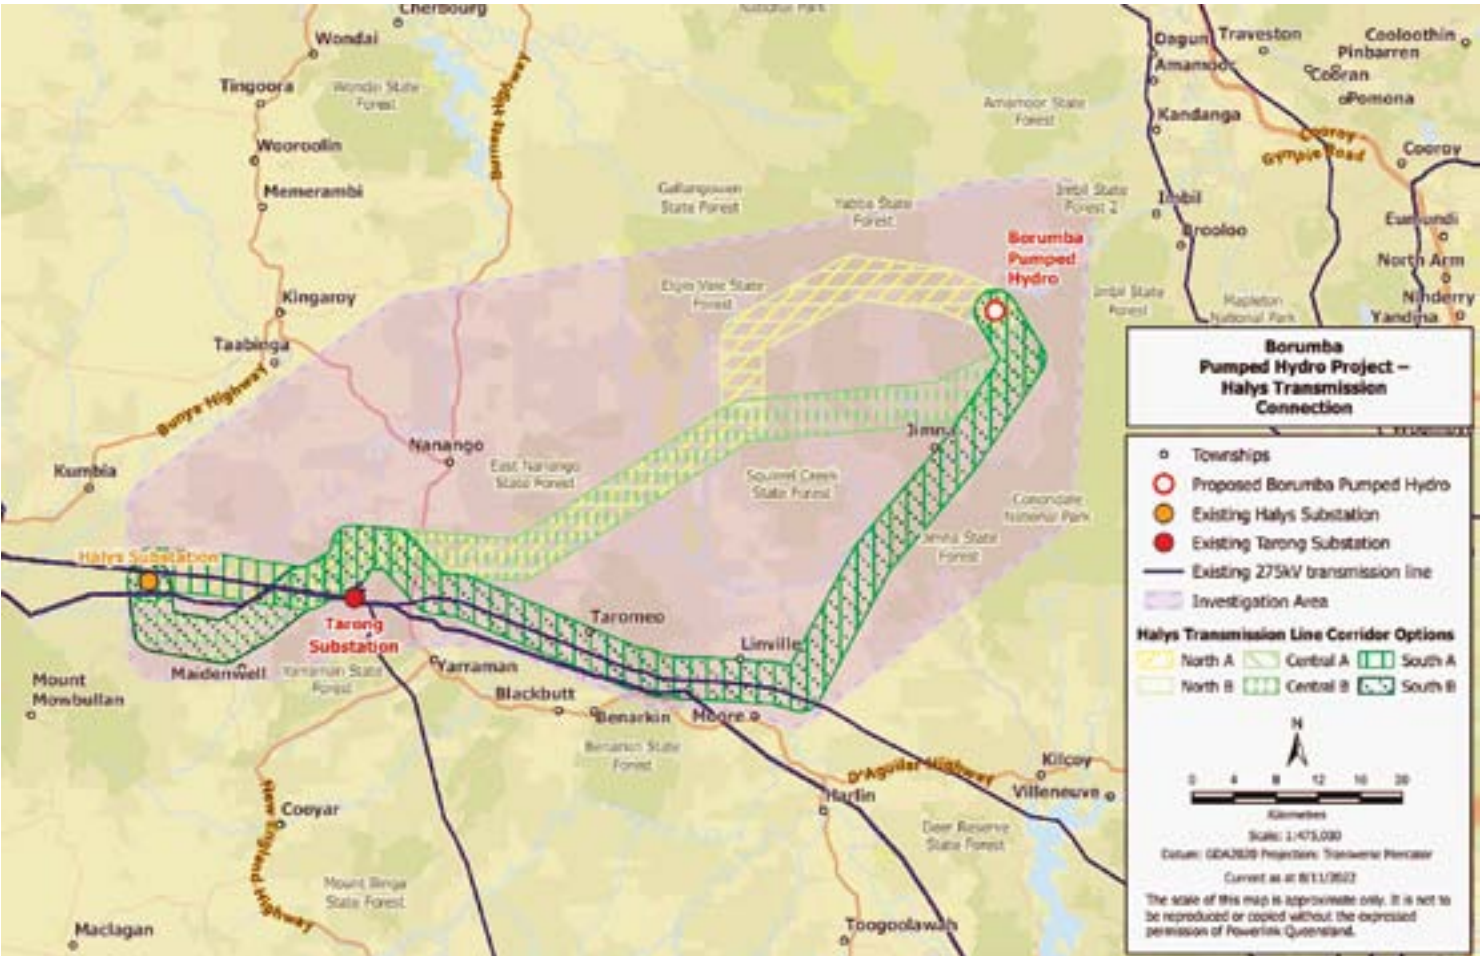

Another issue raised was the future of recreation at Borumba Lake and the impact this might happen on the economy of Imbil- a town close to the Lake.

There were fears that an exclusion zone from the pumped hydro at the eastern side of the Lake might dampen or kill recreational use of the Lake.

In response to questions about the exclusion zone and the future recreational use of the Lake, Queensland Hydro CEO (Interim) Chris Evans said the company was very aware of the importance of Lake Borumba for recreational activities.

"Construction associated with the pumped hydro energy storage project will be undertaken such that recreation activities can continue, as far as practicable, while maintaining the safety of users," the CEO said.

"Once the project is completed, it is likely that there will be restricted water activities close to the pumped hydro intake structures and dam wall, similar to what exists at the dam wall now."

A map of the proposed corridor from Borumba pumped Hydro to Halys substation.

Mr Lowry said the recommended corridors are not a final decision, they are draft recommendations, which remain open for community feedback until close of business on 3 July.

"A 1km-wide corridor will be finalised as part of the Final CSR, due for release in September 2023.

"We will then work with landholders to identify a 70-metre easement being the final alignment for the new transmission line based on their direct feedback and input on how they manage their properties and land."

What are the plans and why were they chosen?

The Draft Corridor Selection Report (CSR) has been released by Powerlink for where powerlines connecting the Borumba Pumped Hydro Site to the Woolooga and Halys Substations will go.

The report was released in late April.

- The corridor chosen to go between the Pumped Hydro and Halys is referred to as Central A and was chosen for a number of reasons.
- It impacts a lower number of properties-tying for the second lowest number at 762 properties, the lowest being 761 properties.
- It avoids strategic cropping and intensive land use such as feedlots- option A impacts 4859 hectares, the largest option affected 7918 hectares and the lowest affected 4103 hectares.

- It also had the least impact on environmental criteria such as essential habitat, affecting 4264 hectares as opposed to all other options which were higher, the second lowest was 4456 hectares affected.
  - This option is also claimed to have zero hectares of National Parks affected when refined to a one-kilometre corridor.
  - It is also the shortest in length (97km) and has the opportunity to co-locate with other transmission lines for 15 per cent of the length.
  - This option also has the lowest proportion of state-owned land at 15 per cent.
- The corridor chosen to go between the Pumped Hydro and Woolooga is referred to as Woolooga West and was chosen for a number of reasons.
- It goes through the highest percentage of state-owned land at 27 per cent, the second closest was 10 per cent.
  - This option impacts the least number of properties at 457 properties affected, the next lowest affecting 458 and the highest affecting 2635 properties.
  - It affects the least number of properties smaller than five hectares at 28 properties, with the largest affecting 1207 properties.

This corridor also has the least impact on:

- Strategic cropping affecting 1857 hectares

- and the next smallest being 2319 hectares.
  - Impact on intensive land use such as feedlots affecting 343 hectares with the next smallest being 432 hectares.
  - National Parks affecting 343 hectares with the next smallest being 432 hectares.
- The chosen west option will also be:
- The longest corridor at 83 kilometres.
  - The highest impact on essential habitat at 5470 hectares affected with the second largest being 4926 hectares.
  - One of three options that have no opportunity to co-locate with existing transmission lines.

Teacher's Anzac adventure

By Euan Morrisson

Alex Cashin, assistant principal at Saint Mary's Catholic College in Kingaroy, returned from the trip of a lifetime in Europe last week.

Alex won the Premier's Anzac Prize, which is a competition for Queensland secondary students and teachers to apply to go on a tour of Europe visiting World War I sites relevant to the ANZACs.

Applying to be a chaperone, Alex had to complete a 20-page application, outlining why she would be a good candidate.

Even with years of experience teaching history, this wasn't easy, but she got it done, sent away, and was accepted.

Part of the deal with the Prize is that each student and chaperone had to do a project on two Servicepeople and deliver a eulogy either at their grave site or a memorial.

Alex chose to do her eulogies for Edith Blake- the only Australian nurse killed in the war, and her great-grandfather, Private Leslie Harold Raward.

Leslie was an orphan, who later married Ethel Raward.

Leslie Raward signed up for the Army with his best mate, Leslie James Bugg on 7 August 1915.

Together, they served in North Africa and then went to France to fight on the Western Front.

Leslie Raward sustained severe shrapnel wounds and was taken off the front line to a field hospital.

Two days before the Battle of Fromelles he succumbed to wounds.

Just 13 days before, the son of Leslie and Ethel Raward and Alex Cashin's grandfather, was born.

He never knew his father, and his father probably never knew of his existence.

Alex was told on the trip, that her grandfather was probably lucky to have died before the battle because with his passing in the hospital, Leslie Raward received a proper burial, his death was recorded, and his family back home were notified of his passing as soon as possible.

This was a bleak luxury compared to so many who died in the Battle of Fromelles but were considered 'missing' as their bodies were eaten by the mud and the rats in no-mans-land.

Leslie Raward's best mate Leslie Bugg likely met some such a fate.

He was considered missing until the end of the war when the Australian Government declared that he had likely died sometime in the Battle.

With recent excavation, a mass grave of some 250 Australian soldiers was found.

Of these 250, over 150 have since been identified, with five more being identified recently.

Alex Cashin hopes that perhaps one day, her great-grandfather's best mate Leslie Bugg will be one of those identified.

5513 of Australians died in the Battle of Fromelles.

As did thousands of British and German people.

Visiting the grave of Leslie Raward was one of the most rewarding elements of the trip for Alex, but the best part for her and Alison Marsh, the other chaperone, was watching the students they were escorting grow so much over the two weeks.

"It's exhausting but it's so rewarding," Alex said.

"Watching young people we took, them being filled with knowledge and awe, and wonder, and curiosity, and watching them grow themselves; not just as young historians, but grow as young people into almost young adults."

The eight students were a very diverse group.

Some were from the city, others from the country, there were four boys and four girls, aged 13 to 18, with different religious backgrounds with two students being Muslim, but they were all drawn together for their passion for history.

While they were in Europe they also went to London, Paris, Villers-Bretonneux, the sites of the Battles of Passchendaele and the Somme and other places of significance.

They also went to Belgium and saw the Brothers in Arms statue of the two Nanango brothers who were parted by the war.

One returned to Australia after the war, the other was buried in Belgium.

Before the group went to Europe, they met with a Brigadier in the Army who posed a question to them, 'What is worth dying for?'

Alex said going on the trip has since changed her answer.

"Before I left, I would've said that's not worth dying for, like what an outrageous loss of human life these wars have been.

"But at the end, the kids were talking about what's worth dying for- your friends, the people you love... you can see why they went and why they stood next to each other and they battled next to their friends, brothers, best friends like my great-grandfather.

"And I can see that too, you wouldn't leave your best friend to go fight by themselves, you'd stand up and go with them."

"That didn't make sense just standing here in Australia, you had to go there to see it."

This understanding and a broader understanding of the First World War is what Alex intends to bring back to her community and pass on to her students.

"I have a much better understanding [of] what happened at the Western Front now... there's a lot of gaps in that Western Front understanding [because] most people focus on Gallipoli and that campaign, so then most students would graduate with not really having a good understanding of what happened in France in World War I.

"I'm going to really try and help change that..."

Applications for the 2024 Premiers Anzac Prize are now open and can be accessed on the Queensland Government website

Eidsvold's exquisite show

By Jessica McGrath

The 79th annual Eidsvold Show was a celebration of the town's community and agriculture. The show kicked off with the campdraft and extreme horseman trial on Saturday, 29 April, before the main show day on Sunday, 30 April. A nod to the region's agricultural background, there was a strong presence in the horse events and cattle events. In a small presentation at the Eidsvold Show, Gina Hamilton was announced as Eidsvold's 2023 Miss Showgirl winner. This was extra special as her grandmother, Dot Hamilton, has been very involved in the Eidsvold Show over the years as the showgirl chaperone. Gabrielle Schafer was named the Junior Miss Showgirl and Maddy Keiler was recognised as the Junior Rural Ambassador. "These three lovely young ladies presented themselves so beautifully, it's an interesting and diverse group and they're all interested in the Ag shows," it was announced at the showgirl presentation. A highlight of the day for the young and 'young at heart' was the lolly drop where a plane dropped lollies over the showgrounds in the mid-afternoon. Eidsvold Show finished up with a fireworks display.

Washdown site plug pulled

By Julian Lehnert

Almost one year after it was first made aware of a range of issues regarding a washdown facility at Mundubbera, the North Burnett Regional Council has decided to pull the plug on the amenity until further notice.

At a 26 April meeting, NBRC councillors debated a report on the facility on Jack Parr Street near the Mundubbera Airport, hearing that, in its current state, the washdown site posed “extensive biosecurity issues” and “environmental risks” should it continue to operate.

As a result of this discussion, the facility was closed immediately and indefinitely, with Council now investigating their next course of action.

The closure of the facility comes as the conclusion of a near one-year review process, which began with a report released on 20 July last year.

“In July 2022 the outcomes of an audit into NBRC-operated washdown facilities were provided to Council,” a spokesperson for the North Burnett Regional Council explained.

“The audit was completed due to concerns regarding potential non-compliance of NBRC washdown facilities and the environmental risk which could be created by such non-compliance, from material such as weeds, seeds and primary industry run-off,” the spokesperson added.

North Burnett CEO Margot Stork expanded on the above information in a statement to Burnett Today.

“The presentation outlined Council’s environmental responsibilities, the nature of issues with both internal and public-facing facilities, comparative service costs, and likelihood and possible scale of cost of establishing compliance and viability in the operations,” Ms Stork said.

“The audit disclosed significant issues with the Mundubbera Washdown Facility, including the potential to create extensive biosecurity issues through seed spread in the Burnett River during rain events,” she explained.

As a result of the July presentation, Council staff launched a full-scale investigation into the facility.

“Following the workshop, staff carried out targeted consultation and developed options for rectification and operation of the public washdown facilities,” Ms Stork explained.

“The results of these investigations were presented to Council at a Workshop on 18 January 2023. The matter then went to Council for consideration at a General Meeting on 26 April 2023.”

However, one North Burnett councillor was not satisfied with the lengthy review process, alleging the issue was known to the NBRC for far longer.

“Following a Council workshop on 28 January about the Mundubbera washdown facility and following numerous conversations with stakeholders, I requested on 9 March to review the facility again (...),” councillor Sue Payne, whose division encompasses the town of Mundubbera, stated in a post to a community Facebook group on 21 April.

“This has fallen on deaf ears. Boom, it’s appeared in our agenda for the meeting on 26 April.

“In 2015, an audit report by consulting engineers - no doubt at great [cost] was completed. So [for] at least eight years Council knew,” Cr Payne alleged.

“Every workshop and meeting is filled with stories like these and quite frankly I’m tired of having to listen to them and make tough decisions thanks to the past. I constantly question what has been happening,” she added.

According to the North Burnett’s CEO, Council staff are now looking into getting the facility up and running once more.

“Council is working to explore options and find a solution which works for [the] North Burnett,” Ms Stork said.

“Any solution will need to meet the State Government compliance requirements and funding options will also need to be considered.

“At this stage it is unclear how long the facility will be closed for, as remedial action and alternative options are explored,” she added.

“Council will continue to provide information to the community as it comes to hand.”

The North Burnett Regional Council operates three other washdown facilities in the region, with one each situated at Monto, Eidsvold and Gayndah.

Cool mornings just a taste

By Julian Lehnert

Kingaroy recorded one of the coldest temperatures in all of Queensland last week, with meteorologists already calling on Burnett residents to prepare for further cold snaps.

According to the Bureau of Meteorology's Queensland branch, Kingaroy was tied with Dalby for the third-lowest recorded temperature in the state between 9am on Monday, 1 May, and Tuesday 2 May, coming in at a near-freezing 1.7 degrees Celsius measured at 5:56am.

The two towns were only eclipsed by Oakey, which measured 0.3 degrees, and Wellcamp at Toowoomba, which recorded Queensland's first sub-zero minimum temperature of 2023 at -0.4 degrees.

Harry Clark, a senior meteorologist for the Bureau of Meteorology, said the cold temperature last week would not be out of the ordinary for Kingaroy if it was recorded later in the year, but with May's average minimum temperature measured at 7.6 degrees, the day's result was certainly noteworthy.

"The coldest temperature ever recorded in Kingaroy in the month of May was -3 degrees Celsius in 2002," Mr Clark said.

"It'll certainly get colder in the next few months, but even next week the minimum [temperatures] are projected to be in the single figures.

"The coolest minimums typically occur in winter, between June and August; the month with the lowest recorded temperatures is July, with an average minimum of 3.8 degrees," he explained, adding that the coldest temperature ever recorded in July was a chilling -6 degrees Celsius.

According to the Bureau's senior weather scientist, the reason for Kingaroy's - and the South Burnett's - cold temperatures lies in the region's high elevation.

"Elevation is definitely the difference-maker," Mr Clark said, saying the South Burnett's hilly geography, such as the Bunya Mountains and the Blackbutt Range, factor into the region recording cooler temperatures than more coastal locations like the Brisbane and Gympie areas.

Kingaroy earned a bronze medal this morning for recording one of the coldest temperatures in all of Queensland.
Picture: FILE/CONTRIBUTED

The cold made another appearance on Monday, 8 May, with a Bureau of Meteorology report stating Kingaroy recorded the fourth-coldest temperature in the state at 11:30am - a cool 14.9 degrees Celsius.

The Bureau of Meteorology's daily temperature measurements for Kingaroy can be found on <http://www.bom.gov.au/climate/dwo/ID-CJDW4069.latest.shtml>.

The outside of Sassy Mama's has been renovated.

Six sassy years of fashion

WOW!! It's been almost six years since 'Sassy Mama' opened its doors in Nanango.

Two years after returning from overseas Sharon Johnson started doing markets on the Sunshine Coast and Nanango.

In early 2017 she relocated to Nanango and shortly after; continued doing markets until she was offered half the shop on the corner of Drayton and Henry Street.

Sharon proceeded with the help of her sister Pamela and a friend Doug, to fit out half the shop.

Not long after completing her side (only one month in), Sharon was offered the other half so she and Doug were at it again coming up with Ideas as to how to fit out the other half.

SASSY MAMA WAS BORN

Sharon rented the shop for 3 years, and in 2020 her Mum passed away.

With her inheritance, Sharon was able to purchase the beautiful historic building located at the traffic lights on the corner of Henry and Drayton Street in Nanango.

The upstairs has now been lovingly, completely restored.

Sassy Mama is currently undergoing extensive exterior renovations.

The front facades on Drayton and Henry Street are now complete with only the sign-writing to be done which has been made possible with a 50/50 Façade Grant from the South Burnett Regional Council.

COVID HIT

Keen to help you be seen

You might think that this is the first time you've heard of Push Pull Marketing, PR and Events, but you certainly would have seen their work!

Push Pull Marketing, PR and Events was first developed to service the region after Sheena, who'd been working in Local Government over a 10-year time span, realised that there was little availability of marketing professional services in this area to assist businesses level-up, or of getting regional stories in multiple channels. They have just moved their office to 1/194 Kingaroy Street, Kingaroy.

Known for their work in Blackbutt Delights, South Burnett Music Awards, Grape Stomp, Dalby's World Record Breaking Show, Kingaroy BaconFest and a number of other projects in small businesses, Push Pull Marketing deliver a full suite of digital and traditional services for regional communities.

"I have always believed that people, especially regional people, are more than who they say they are; further, I believe that because of this humble gap of what they do, and what they say they do; that they do themselves a disservice in marketing. Australian communities are bigger than knowing every person we walk past, which means we have to outgrow not talking about who we are and what we do. Otherwise we just can't help the people around us and regional Australia can't be seen for its honest and economic importance," said Managing Director, Sheena Lindholm.

"You get more than marketing from us, you get a market position, who are you, what do you do and how can we best name your service to the world, so that both you and your customers can appreciate, celebrate and market your contribution to the world. Sometimes we have to help committees and business owners find confidence first to have these discussions, but it's simply why we love what we do."

"You will hear us saying to our clients, we see you before you see you; it's our job to put words around that then apply our Marketing science by mixing localised learnings, data and creativity to get quality results. It's why a local agency pays greater dividends and requires less briefings; we know the footprint, the politics, the expectations, and some of the market gaps before talking to our clients. Then, the rest for us is process, we then simply transfer this out to our tools and services and services of websites, social media marketing, graphic design, PR, and events. If you've got that all in hand, we just pick up your work and run it out to market for you."

"We're doing our part in getting businesses and community groups in newspapers, on billboards and in social feeds across Australia. But, we can't do it alone, we can't do it without businesses and community groups investing in their marketing. Even if you can't invest in us doing the work for you, pick one of our mentoring or training sessions so that you still benefit from the service in our area."

Drop in at our new office location, 1/194 Kingaroy Street, Kingaroy; or make an appointment by email hello@pushpull.com.au, Facebook @pushpullmarketing or phone/text 0439 085 947.

Hub Community Network Inc.

Disability support service

Hub Community Network commenced operations in 1996 and was established by members of the Murgon community as a Disability Support Service.

In 2017 HUB registered with the National Disability Insurance Agency to align with the continuation of funding and the delivery of quality support services as Disability Services Queensland funding ceased in 2018. HUB also provides support services to people funded by the Department of Health's Disability Support for Older Australians and Fees for Service agreements.

HUB is an individual and community focused organisation providing support coordination, social and community participation, household support, short term accommodation holiday options and more. Our objective is to provide flexible individual support based on valued and informed choices that meets individual needs and assists with the development of skills, self-confidence and esteem, and enhances the quality of life for people with disabilities in Murgon and the surrounding areas.

HUB's administrative and support team consists of a Management Committee, Manager, Support Coordinator and an experienced and qualified Lifestyle Support staff. Our office is based in Murgon and covers the South Burnett area and the community of Cherbourg.

HUB operates according to the NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission legislative requirements and audited every 18 months to ensure all supports are delivered under the National Disability Insurance Practice Standards. Examples of NDIS participants comments from this audit process include:-

"My carer is my mate, she is there for me and has been since I started. I'm very independent and she respects that, management are out at the location to see how things are going that's really good."

"Every week there is something to do. I know everyone in the office and I'm popping in there for a cuppa and a chat or to read the paper."

HUB is passionate about continuing and adapting to the everchanging world of the NDIS. We remain committed to providing individual quality services in line with our long standing reputation and five star record of accreditation.

NDIS business workshops

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people from the Burnett region are invited to learn about starting their own NDIS business.

There will be two one-day workshops, one in Eidsvold and another in Kingaroy, where participants will learn about how to start and grow a National Disability Insurance Scheme business.

Register online or simply come along on Monday, 15 May to North Burnett Community Hall or Wednesday, 17 May to the South Burnett Enterprise Centre to work with Aboriginal business expert trainer Leesa Watego from 'IM', Iscariot Media.

Both sessions will be held from 9am to 4pm with snacks and lunch provided.

Attendees will leave with an understanding about the NDIS and how to build a business to support those living with NDIS in their mob.

This is part of the Get NDIS Business Ready seminar series and offers free place-based and online sessions focused on understanding the NDIS and entering the NDIS market.

Key topics included in the First Nations Get NDIS Business Ready session will be:

- Understanding the NDIS, with a focus on First Nations perspectives and experiences
- Understanding the needs and goals of local NDIS participants
- NDIS business opportunities, market growth and how to become a registered NDIS provider
- Understanding NDIS Worker Screening and quality and safeguards requirements.

The seminar program is supporting NDIS eligible First Nations people with disability to access more culturally safe services in their own communities to live their best lives.

More than 102,000 Queenslanders receive NDIS supports totalling more than $7 billion per year - this includes almost 10,000 Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in this state.

Iscariot Media managing director Leesa Watego will be the Aboriginal business expert trainer.

Picture: CONTRIBUTED

An extra 40,000 Queenslanders are expected to enter the NDIS by 2025. This will provide even more opportunities for First Nations owned businesses to grow through delivering disability supports to NDIS participants.

Community Services Industry Alliance has partnered with Iscariot Media to deliver this phase of the program. IM is an Aboriginal owned and operated agency with expertise and lived experience in training and supporting Indigenous business.

CSIA CEO Cheryl Schmidt said the ongoing support from the Department of Seniors, Disability Services and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Partnerships has meant even more Get NDIS Business Ready seminars for First Nations communities and people.

"A culturally safe and sustainable NDIS and community services workforce is integral to meet service needs in metro, regional, rural and remote Queensland," she said.

"It's through partnerships like this, between Government, Industry, community and those with the lived experience, that we can provide innovative ways to support and build a strong care economy and dynamic workforce for the future."

IM Managing Director Leesa Watego said: "The care Industry is a vital area for all peoples, but particularly Indigenous people and communities. There are many different ways to work in industry, including small business. We look forward to helping to increase Indigenous enterprises in this space."

The session details are:

- Monday 15 May 9am-4pm at North Burnett Community Hall (36 Esplanade Street, Eidsvold)
- Wednesday, 17 May 9am-4pm at South Burnett Enterprise Centre (6 Cornish Street, Kingaroy)

Tech grants available for region's small businesses

Burnett small businesses are invited to apply for a grant which will help them adopt new technology into their business.

The Optus Business Plus Tech Grant is set to help small businesses evolve and address the challenges in the current economic climate.

It is part of a national initiative that will see $30,000 in tech grants available to small businesses in the Burnett Valley region and allow them to apply for one of two 1:1 business mentorship opportunities available nationally.

Sean Casey, VP Optus Business, Enterprise and Business representative said the tech grants were a way owners could 'future-proof' their business.

"Optus recognises that the current economic landscape is challenging for many Aussie small businesses and we see tech grants and mentorship opportunities as a way to not only support SMBs today, but future proof them by providing technology solutions and knowledge to continue to evolve their business in the way they want," he said.

"Optus Business Plus was built with customer feedback front and centre and is designed to support business owners in Burnett Valley by integrating flexible and modular business technology solutions designed specifically for SMBs."

Two small businesses will be selected to receive a 1:1 mentorship session with one of two leading business mentors - Jo Burstons, founder and CEO of Inspiring Rare Birds, and Jamal Elsheikh, One Love Australia founder - and a $5,000 tech grant.

A further 20 SMEs will win $1,000 tech grants to support their business in adopting and evolving through tech.

"Support and building a community around you when in business is crucial," Jo Burstons said.

Emily Swift, Max Schofield, Jo Burstons and Sean Casey encourage small businesses to apply for the Optus tech grant.

Picture: CONTRIBUTED

"I am excited to team up with Optus Business to work with Burnett Valley small businesses by providing advice and learnings from my own business career."

The timing of the grant comes as research conducted by the Australian Bureau of Statistics reveals rising inflation (42 per cent) and reduced consumer spending (41 per cent) are the two biggest concerns for SMBs in Australia, with many looking to cut costs or pay themselves less to negate this.

It also revealed SMBs, which account for 97.5 per cent of all businesses in Australia, have reported a lack of understanding about the benefits of new technology (42 per cent) and identified the needs for internal skills and training (39 per cent) as the greatest barrier to upgrading their technology and finding new efficiencies.

Andy's allure of portraits

By Rochelle Field

Kingaroy Regional Art Gallery held their official exhibition opening last Friday evening, 5 May.

People from around the Burnett gathered together in the gallery to see new artworks, 'Past Present Future' by A.K. O'Sullivan, 'Breath' by Elsebe Louw, and 'I'm Still Standing' by Cherry Caroll.

The three artists shared a bit about their story and their journey creating the beautiful pieces.

Artist, A.K. O'Sullivan has recently taken over the 'Framed with Style' store in Kingaroy Street.

Andy O'Sullivan shares her story.

Born close to Nuremberg in Germany, she came to Australia to travel when she was 18, falling in love with a Sunshine Coast man who became her husband.

A.K. O'Sullivan came back to Australia a year ago, after spending the previous seven years in Germany.

"Memerambi it was," she said.

Andy has been painting all her life.

"Even though I venture into some landscape, I always come back to portraiture," she said.

Upon being asked what draws her into portraiture, she replies with a comment from the heart.

"The interest in people, who they are, and how complex, and to capture more than a photo does," she said.

‘Men, book a check-up’

By Jessica McGrath

South Burnett’s 2023 Face of Relay is urging men to get regular health check-ups.

Dennis Cotter was announced as the relay ambassador at the Kingaroy Chamber of Commerce and Industry’s Relay For Life breakfast on Thursday, 4 May, which marked the official launch of the 2023 Relay for Life campaign.

“I strongly encourage everyone out there, at least at the age of 60, to go and get full blood tests... get your check-up,” he said.

“This is the problem: we don’t listen to our bodies, it will tell us when something is wrong, so please go and get your check-up if you’re early, you’ll beat it.”

The prostate cancer survivor is thankful he had been cautious and had biennial check-ups once he turned 50 and annual tests after he turned 60.

When he was 67, his concerned GP referred him to a specialist. They did a biopsy and two out of eight were cancerous.

The following year, the biopsy returned eight cancerous samples out of 14.

“We’ve got to do something... but we got you very early.. there’s other options,” the specialist told Dennis.

In February 2021, Dennis went and saw oncology and underwent 20 doses of radiation.

During his latest check-up, in March 2023, Dennis’ tests came back negative.

“It looks like we’ve beaten it, no cancer cells showing, there’s nothing in the blood,” he said.

At the breakfast, melanoma survivor and Australian cricketer Greg Rowell shared his story as the morning’s guest speaker and echoed Dennis’ call for others, especially men, to get regular health check-ups.

Relay a huge success

2023 marks 18 years of Relay for Life in Kingaroy and the South Burnett.

Since it started in 2006, the Burnett campaign has raised more than $1.8 million for Cancer Council.

Cancer Council’s Jessica Hughes shared some cancer statistics at the Relay Breakfast and thanked the South Burnett crew for their dedication.

“This event in particular has been a huge success for so many years now so we want to thank you so much for your dedication,” she said.

The money raised goes towards Cancer Council’s 13 11 20 support line for those impacted by cancer diagnosis, accommodation lodges for patients undergoing treatment, counselling, financial support and of course, cancer research.

Cancer Council has been able to invest $250 million into Australian cancer research in the past five years alone. This critical research has helped increase cancer survival rates in Australia from 49 per cent in the 1980s to 69 per cent today.

Region’s fundraisers

Carl Rackemann, who has been a driving force behind Relay for Life, was announced as the Relay’s ongoing Patron.

Before the official relay event, Carl will head up the long-awaited Dinner with the Captains, which is set for Saturday 29 July (more details on page 62).

At the breakfast Carl announced the 2023 Australian captains will be: rugby league star Allan Langer AM, beach volleyballer Natalie Cook OAM and Australian women’s cricket captain Jodie Purves.

Another major fundraiser is the Ride 4 Relay, which will also take place from 29 August to 2 September. Participants are sponsored to take on the challenge of cycling more than 400 kilometres in four and a half days.

Rowena Dionysius, South Burnett Relay for Life Chair and 2023 South Burnett Citizen of the Year, outlined the plans for Relay for Life 2023 at the breakfast.

The relay itself will be held on Saturday, 7 October at a new location, the Kingaroy Red Ants field.

There will be the Survivors and Carers afternoon tea and also the sombre candlelight ceremony.

Rowena encouraged teams to set aside the date and to start registering for relay 2023. Search ‘South Burnett/ Kingaroy’ on www.relayforlife.org.au/ to register.

Did you meet GayJan?

By Jessica McGrath

Along Gayndah Orange Festival’s bustling ‘main street’, father and son duo Joshua and Andrew Marsh were serving up drinks for festival goers.

The Marsh Coffee Plus stall, which sold a range of coffee, teas, hot chocolates and slushies, had a unique attraction over the festival weekend of 29 and 30 April.

‘GayJan’ sat at the front of their stall to welcome everyone and posed for photos with Orange Festival attendees.

Born and raised on a local citrus farm, GayJan loves to help out in her Gayndah community and meet new people, but can be a little shy at times.

She loves listening to the Burnett River

Radio and cheering on the mighty Gayndah Gladiators when they play.

Helping the environment is a big part of GayJan’s life, she loves to recycle and has her own compost heap that she uses to help grow her own fresh fruit and vegetables which she then shares with her local community.

GayJan is a friend of the official Gayndah Orange Festival mascot GayDan who was out and about at the 2023 festival also greeting citrus fans.

The GayJan mascot was lovingly created with help from the children at the Chris Marsh Family Day Care.

She is made from old clothes stuffed with soft plastics and her head is made from a recycled paper mache ball and covered in an orange fabric.

Vacancies, listings to rent

By Julian Lehnert

Potential renters in the Wide Bay-Burnett can breathe a little easier this month, following a 'sizeable' uptick in rental listings across the region - but industry experts warn the country-wide housing crisis is still far from over.

Real estate appraisal service PropTrack delivered its March 2023 rental report on 27 April, with figures indicating that pressures on current and potential renters in regional Queensland have eased to an extent.

The report, which assessed property market enquiries by over 12 million Australians, outlined that, in regional Queensland, the overall number of new rental listings had increased by 17 per cent from last year, bringing with it a 39.4 per cent decrease in applications per listing.

Across regional Queensland, the rental vacancy rate was listed as 1.62 per cent - a 16 per cent increase over last year's 1.36 per cent.

In the Wide Bay-Burnett region in particular, the number of rental listings had gone up by 11.6 per cent in the month of March, contributing to a 47.5 per cent increase over 2022.

However, PropTrack's Director of Economic Research, Cameron Kusher, warns that the total number of rental listings compared to pre-pandemic levels - together with a still-low vacancy rate - mean renters are not out of the woods just yet.

"While this [rental listing increase] is a sizeable jump, total rental listings are still 33.8 per cent lower than they were at the start of the pandemic, so supply remains much tighter than it was," Mr Kusher explained.

"This is also reflected in the very tight rental vacancy rate which is 1.3 per cent, albeit it has increased from 1 per cent a year ago."

"Absent a return of investors to the market or a big increase in first home buyer numbers, it seems unlikely that the strong demand and insufficient rental supply will be rectified any time soon," he warned.

"This means the cost of renting is expected to continue rising - particularly in capital cities."

Tidy sum raised means super success for Health Queen

By Jessica McGrath and Wide Bay Health

Gayndah's 'Health Queen' has raised a record amount of money for charity.

More than $9,450 was raised by Gayndah Hospital's 2023 Gayndah Orange Festival Queen entrant Kirsty Taylor.

The Gayndah registered nurse and part-time hairdresser was crowned the Orange Festival Miss Charity Queen 2023 and the overall runner-up for the Orange Festival Queen at the Orange Festival Ball on 22 April.

This was thanks to the sixth-generation Gayndah local's massive effort across a range of fundraising events in the lead-up to the festival which included a pie drive, lawn bowls, multi-affle and wine tour.

Director of Nursing Sue Coward congratulated Kirsty on her efforts, thanked everyone who supported the fundraising and also took the time to reflect on the contribution Gayndah Hospital staff have made to the festival over the years.

"Gayndah Hospital and staff over the years have played a major role in this festival and funds raised will ensure longevity of the festival," Sue said.

"Our Orange Festival entrants have had great success and we have always pulled together as a team to enter a float in the street parade - which also have often received awards."

A bonus to Kirsty's success, Gayndah Hospital's Orange Fest float themed 'Health-care Heroes' won first place for the 'Most Decorative Float' in the 2023 Gayndah Orange Festival parade on 29 April.

Gayndah Hospital's record in the Queen entry and the street parade over the years is as follows:

- 2015 Tayla Rolf: Miss Personality.
- 2017 Rebecca Raffety: Runner-up to Festival Queen. Winner Best Trade Float
- 2019 Leah Ezzy: Miss Charity Queen so close, Winner Best Trade Float
- 2021 Teagan Bechly: Orange Festival Queen 2021, Best Trade and Champion Float
- 2023 Kirsty Taylor: Orange Festival Queen runner-up and Miss Charity Queen, Winner Most Decorative Float

THE INTEREST RATES HIKE

INTEREST rate hike whiplash for mortgage holders, says REIQ

The REIQ says last month's pause in interest rate hikes has proven to be a short-lived relief for mortgage holders, as the RBA has hiked the cash rate by 25 basis points to 3.85 percent – the highest level since April 2012.

REIQ chief operating officer Dean Milton said the RBA's decision to forge ahead with its aggressive tightening cycle would weigh heavily on homeowners and investors.

"We have seen regulatory chaos from State and Federal Governments, and whiplashing back to another interest rate rise only adds to this pain," Mr Milton said.

"There's barely been time for the market to absorb the lagged impact of the previous 10 consecutive rises and reassess the approach based on this.

"Equally, it's difficult to see how would-be buyers can catch a break when their borrowing capacity has been on such unsteady footing."

Mr Milton said economic conditions were already stifling future supply and pushing the dream of home ownership further out of reach for many.

"Building approvals for houses are down which will have impacts on short-to-medium term supply, and lending statistics are also showing buyer activity is continuing on a downward trend," he said.

"Inflation in Queensland is being driven by inelastic goods and services such as electricity up 32.5 percent and health up six percent for the quarter, which interest rates do nothing to quell.

"It's time for state, federal and local governments to do their part in fighting inflation.

"Fiscal policy needs to match monetary policy, and what we need now is action to remove impediments to new housing supply, investment in social housing, and a focus on overall spending to ensure it does not lead to further increases in inflation."

On another note, he said the recent recommendations from the RBA review were welcomed by the REIQ.

"We welcome the refresh of the RBA which brings it in to line with other major central banks around the world - more transparency is always welcome," he said.

The respite from rising borrowing costs will be a short one, with the Reserve Bank surprising most economists by lifting its key interest rate again and warning of more hikes might be needed.

Writing in The Guardian, Peter Hannam said the move defied investors who had bet the central bank would extend its pause for a second month.

The dollar soared and shares sank on the surprise.

The move comes on top of 10 consecutive rises since last May and brings the cumulative increase to 3.75 percentage points.

"Inflation in Australia has passed its peak, but at seven percent is still too high and it will be some time yet before it is back in the target range," RBA governor Philip Lowe said in a statement.

REIQ chief operating officer Dean Milton. 314297

"Given the importance of returning inflation to target within a reasonable timeframe, the board judged that a further increase in interest rates was warranted."

The rates decision came despite last week's release of weaker-than-expected inflation, particularly for the underlying price pressures the RBA follows closely. Instead, the board weighed other factors, such as a jobless rate at near half-century lows, the nation's population expected to swell 700,000 this year and next and a rebound in property prices. ●

11854 Bunya Hwy, Memerambi, QLD, 461

This 74.23 acres just 8kms to Kingaroy offers the owners the opportunity to live a rural lifestyle and have a productive farming operation.

Historically the farm was 100% cropping, growing peanuts, corn, barley, wheat, beans. In recent years cultivation paddocks have been grassed down with improved pastures and an area of Leucaena fodder trees planted. Cattle on agistment have just left the property.

The property sits on an undulating rise offering views back to Kingaroy. The rich red vine scrub soil has been contoured and fallow for many years.

Fencing is mainly steel and 4 barb with some internal fencing.

Property features include:

- A North facing brick home, built in the contemporary style, open plan.
- Freshly painted exterior trims
- 4 Bedrooms; all with built-ins
- Sunroom/Office
- South facing patio
- North facing pergola; Oregon pine stained with shade cloth roof.
- Water is supplied to the home from a 10,000 gallon underground tank
- Aircon unit and ceiling insulation
- 2 Toilets (one is a bidet), 2 showers
- New electric hot water system
- Double carport
- A chook pen and landscaped gardens complete the picturesque rural outlook. The garden has mature fruiting and nut trees including avocado, pecan, orange, lemon, custard apple, mango, fig and olive. The ornamental garden has native and exotic trees including jacaranda, frangipani & pine.
- The Farm shed and workshop are a short walk from the house; 4 bays in total approx. 20mx14m
- Built from round timber and iron the shed is big enough to keep the farm workshop, machinery and grain storage all under roof.
- The workshop area has a concrete floor, plenty of shelving and power
- The machinery area is across 2 wide bays with a dirt floor
- A hand built grain storage unit with dryer sits within the shed area.
- The shed is lockable with full length sliding doors on 2 sides, rain water collection to one metal, one poly tank (2x 5000+gallon)
- A small set of livestock yards; panels, timber, mesh with steel loading ramp.

The farm paddocks have been left fallow for a number of years and have a good body of grass.

- Mainly ex-cultivation sown to improved pastures
- One area of Leucaena fodder trees

This property would suit a professional couple working in a nearby town looking for that escape to a private space but close enough to town for work and cultural experiences.

Q&A

Gina Hamilton is an impressive young lady who loves horses and her community Eidsvold. This year she was named the 2023 Miss Eidsvold Showgirl and will later this year represent Eidsvold at the Burnett Sub-chamber finals.

As her grandmother used to be involved with the showgirl competition at the Brisbane Ekka, this showgirl journey is extra special for Gina. This is what she had to say as this week's Burnett's Best guest:

How do you feel about being named the 2023 Miss Eidsvold Showgirl?

I feel very lucky, I feel very privileged to be able to represent the Eidsvold Show and go onto the sub-chamber.

What's your highlight of the 2023 Eidsvold Show?

My highlight is always the horse events, being a horsey person I love to watch the showjumping and the hacks.

Your grandmother, Dot Hamilton, has a long involvement with the Eidsvold Show -tell us about that?

Grandma has been a massive part of the Eidsvold Show since I can remember and long before I was born. She was also the chaperone for the showgirls at the Ekka for 16 years -so grandma is a big reason why I wanted to be the showgirl. She's always supported me and I'd love to be able to get grandma to see one of her grandchildren to go on [to the Ekka].

What is so important about agricultural shows?

They are a backbone of the community I believe, they get history involved. They get everyone from the little fellas right through to your grandparents to come out and be involved, to have a day out and it's a great social thing for a community.

How have you been involved in the Eidsvold Show over the years?

My grandma was president prior to my father who is the current president of the show, my mum is the secretary at the moment -so it's very much a family affair. I can remember rid-

THREE ... tips for Showgirls

You've decided to take the brave step and put your hand up for a showgirl or rural ambassador role -congratulations! Here's some tips to keep in mind:

- Brush up on your general knowledge
In your interviews you'll be asked general knowledge questions about politics, general news and who's who in Queensland Agricultural Shows. Be sure to be keeping up with what's happening locally, in Queensland, Australia and the world -especially when it comes to issues around farming and agriculture.
- Stand-out from the crowd
Go above and beyond on your initial interview day and then again at the sub-chamber finals. Have initiative, be helpful and be poised both on show day and your finals. You are a proud representative of your town's agricultural show and your whole community is cheering you on.
- Be you
Most importantly, be genuine, be you and have fun! Your individual personality will be what truly sets you apart. Enjoy the experience and the opportunity to meet equally passionate young people in the agricultural circles -you might just make a friend amongst the other entrants.

Eggplant... The blank Canvas

It has been said that an eggplant can become anything it wants to be. It's like a blank canvas waiting to be painted with other flavours. Aubergine, also known as eggplant, is a fruit rather than a vegetable and is botanically classified as a berry. It is closely related to tomatoes and potatoes, and surprisingly, the tobacco plant. Originating in South East Asia, aubergine is commonly used in Italian, Mediterranean, French, and Middle Eastern cuisines. Aubergines come in many varieties, ranging from small pea-shaped to large pumpkin-like shapes and sizes, and come in various colors including green, cream, dark purple, and yellow. They can be prepared in many ways, such as hot or cold, braised, baked, battered and deep-fried, grilled, pan-fried, barbecued, stuffed, blended, and pureed. Famous dishes made from aubergine include ratatouille, moussaka, baba ghanoush, and imam bayildi. While aubergines can be a bit bitter in their raw form, they do not contain enough nicotine to be addictive.

In fact, you would need to eat around 10kg of raw eggplant to consume the equivalent amount of nicotine found in one cigarette. However, if an aubergine is particularly bitter, it may need to be degorged to remove its moisture and bitterness. Personally, I enjoy grilled aubergine slices. In my next column, I'll share with you my favourite grilled Aubergine antipasto recipe.

‘Mate, get your priorities sorted’

I read with interest the opinion pieces SBT (4th May) on the Voice referendum.

Maybe too many birthdays make one skeptical, but when a politician says ‘trust me’ red lights start flashing. Why does our Prime Minister refuse to go into detail as to how this voice will work? Who or what will comprise this voice?

I believe there are as many as 250 tribal groups in Australia. A representative from each group? When, where and how often will they meet and at what cost?

How will they be appointed to The Voice? What authority or influence will they have? How will it assist, in real terms, the indigenous communities on the ground. Why is the Govt so biased as to fund one side of the debate and vilify anyone who dares question the ‘official’ line.

While there is enormous cultural and ethnic diversity, there is only one race, the human race. While skin color and other physical features may vary, when cut we all bleed red blood.

Few if any of those arriving on those ships in 1788 were there by choice. Look at the make-up; hardly an invasion fleet. What about the massive Chinese influx in the gold rush? What country on the face of this earth has never been physically invaded or culturally invaded?

Yes, the indigenous Australians were here first, yes many and varied are those who have arrived in the last 240 years. Many things could have been done better, but again we focus on the negatives. What about those things done well.

While we hear of the hardships, poverty and self-harm, again it is community wide affecting all Australians. Australians of all backgrounds have achieved in life, from the Sth Burnett Teli-quia Clancey brought home a silver medal from Tokyo, Selwyn Cobbo is up and coming in his football career. Business, Arts, Politics, Sport. Not because of ethnicity but from pure hard work, developing a God given skill or talent.

Albo, get your priorities sorted mate. Put the Voice on the back burner. Every elector already has three voices to parliament.

The catafalque party mounts before parade commander Steven Reynolds and guest speaker Neil Whitehead. 334027 Picture: JULIAN LEHNERT

- 1.We tick the boxes on polling day.
- 2.We have access to our elected representatives
- 3.There are lobby groups covering almost every conceivable issue.

We need GPs in rural and regional areas. Wondai Family Medical Center closed its doors in April. Each week a trip to the supermarket costs that little bit more, cheap renewable energy? but our energy bills keep rising. We lack affordable housing for those who already live here, yet Canberra is talking some massive migrant intake over the next couple of years. Where will they live?

I come with a Christian world view. Integrity is important, although I am human too and get it wrong at times. The Psalmist tells us that we all come from the same source, a unique individual, a masterpiece crafted by the hand of God in our mother's womb.

Do the homework and research. Ask the hard questions. Make an informed decision. Stand up and be the person God intends you to be.

Bruce Wilding, Wondai

Congrats on Kingaroy Anzac Day

Congratulations to LCDR Steven Reynolds CSM RAN R'td and all those in the Kingaroy/

Memerambi Sub Branch who organised AN-ZAC Day activities for Kingaroy.

In a time when some are seeking to create division and disunity in our country, it was a delight to see so many people of all ages applauding the veterans and children marching to commemorate the efforts of Australians who have served our country in uniform.

Outstanding also were the children singing at Memorial Park and thanks to their Choir-masters.

The friendly cooperation of our police and others involved in traffic control was much appreciated.

Yours sincerely, Geoff Pickering, Warwick QLD

Inflation

It's time the government attacks the real cause of inflation by imposing a windfall profits tax, on companies and banks, to make excessive profiteering less attractive and direct the funds raised into helping those who suffer from inflation's crippling damage.

Inflation has been brought under control successfully before, during WW2, by using a windfall profits tax.

Hold off on increasing interest rates that only hurt home buyers and causes a lot of distress in the community.

Also small business struggles to pay more for money they have borrowed and super-markets have to chase their tail by increasing prices to combat rising costs.

Let's take true aim on controlling inflation.

Paul Hamilton, Kingaroy

Our best barbecue tips

The Bundaberg and Hervey Bay Barbeques Galore franchises have both won the prestigious National Franchisee of the Year Award and the staff know a lot about selecting the right barbecue and cooking on it!

When choosing a portable barbecue, here are their top tips:

- Gas is probably the easiest fuel source to manage, but electric and charcoal models are available
- Consider size and where it is being stored, especially if you want to take it camping etc.

if it is being fitted into a caravan, it must be compliant with current flame failure standards.

- 1, 2 and 3 burner models are available and can generally be purchased with or without trolleys.
- Grill plates are best for searing meat, but you may want a flat plate on which to cook eggs, fry onions etc.

Also remember:

- Use a good quality high temp oil (eg canola)

on barbecue plates. Low temp oils like olive oil can be used on the meat etc. but not directly on the plates as it will burn on, making cleaning very difficult.

- Bringing food to room temperature prior to barbecuing allows for more even cooking as it is less shocked by the intense heat that a barbecue instantly applies.
- When roasting, place meat on a raised trivet in baking dish. If there are 2 or 3 grills heat all burners initially, then you can usually turn the plate directly under the roast off.

■ Don't pick, poke or squash your food on the barbecue as this removes moisture from the food, ultimately destroying the look and taste of it.

■ Always allow meat to rest after cooking to allow the texture to relax and the juices to be absorbed back in.

■ After cooking, while plates are still warm, use a sturdy grill brush and water to remove any food residues and apply a light coating of high temp oil.

Barbecued chicken roulades are sure to impress

Want to impress family/friends at your next barbecue? These roulades can be prepared beforehand and be in the refrigerator ready to pop onto the barbecue for cooking.

BARBECUED CHICKEN ROULADES

SERVES: 6 roulades

Ingredients:

- 6 trimmed chicken breasts (tenderloins removed)
- 12 pieces thinly sliced (2mm) streaky bacon
- chicken rub/seasoning of choice
- 2 cups cooked, mashed sweet potato
- ¼ cup roughly chopped macadamias
- ½ cup golden syrup (and 1 tablespoon rum if desired)

Method:

1. Combine sweet potato and macadamias, mix well and put aside.
2. Flatten each chicken breast to 5-7mm thickness.
3. For each roulade lay 2 pieces of bacon on piece of baking paper on a clean board.
4. Lay flattened chicken breast on top of bacon, trimming if necessary.
5. Sprinkle with rub.
6. Place approximately 1 tablespoon of sweet potato/macadamia mix on chicken breast and spread evenly, leaving about 2cms at far end.
7. With assistance of baking paper, firmly roll the bacon, chicken etc to form a log.
8. Twist the baking paper on both ends to form a bonbon and refrigerate the roulades to set (at least 30 minutes).
9. Place roulades (still in baking paper) on rack in barbecue on medium heat for approximately 5 minutes, with the lid down.
10. Carefully unwrap roulades and place back on open barbecue for another 10 minutes, or until cooked through (turn during cooking).
11. Warm syrup (and rum if used) over low heat, stirring continually.
12. Slice each roulade into 4-5 pieces and drizzle with sauce before serving.

These BBQ Chicken Roulades are sure to impress at your next barbecue party.

Isuzu Genie does his job

By Derek Ogden, Marque Motoring

It seems that like the Genie of the Lamp a customer's wish is Isuzu Ute's command, for a new model has elbowed its way into the top echelons of its rugged pick-up truck ranks.

The Japanese manufacturer has slotted the D-Max LS-U+ in between the well-presented LS-U double cab lifestyle ute and flagship of the updated third generation for those who want a touch of luxury without the 'shouty' styling of the X-Terrain.

The new D-Max LS-U+ Crew Cab 4x4 Ute features similar equipment to the MY22 LS-U variant, but with the addition of premium black leather-accented upholstery and interior trims.

Convenience is also enhanced by the addition of a Smart Key, providing keyless entry, push button start, welcome light, and walk away door lock. Similar to the system in the X-Terrain, the welcome light illuminates the cabin when it detects the key is within 2 metres of the vehicle and the latter automatically locks the vehicle when the smart key is detected more than 3m away.

Also available is a genuine canopy, which adds a combination of convenient lockable pop-out or sliding windows, making the LS-U+ a versatile load carrier.

Pricing reflects the added creature comforts and convenience, with the LS-U+ priced at $61,900 plus on-road costs, $2500 more than the regular LS-U, but considerably $4000 cheaper than the range-topping X-Terrain.

Warranty is six years or 150,000 kilometres; seven years roadside assistance, provided servicing is with an Isuzu Ute dealer, and seven years capped price servicing.

STYLING

The LS-U+ comes exclusively with a double cab and style-side high tensile steel body on a ladder-frame chassis.

The front is lifted from X-Terrain extremes with a dark coloured grille broken up by dual chrome cross pieces, the latter considered a badge of premium quality, especially in Europe.

Flanking this are automatic bi-LED headlights, incorporating LED daytime running lights, with auto-levelling and automatic high beam control. Below are LED fog lights.

LEDs sign off the rear with combination taillights. On a sad note, large heated door mirrors are poorly positioned up front to produce a niggling blind spot.

A versatile factory-fitted tub liner is installed inside the 1570 mm long, 1530 mm wide, 490 mm deep tray. A selection of tonneaus and canopies is available from the Isuzu Ute Genuine Accessories catalogue. The test vehicle was fitted with a manually operated lockable roller tonneau cover.

The D-Max LS-U+ . . . Isuzu slips in a spot of luxury.

Picture: CONTRIBUTED

The D-Max LS-U+ rolls on 18 inch machined-face alloy wheels with 265/60R18 Bridgestone 684II HT tyres. There's a full-size spare.

INTERIOR

The cabin is modern and comfortable, with black leather-accented upholstery, eight-way power assisted driver's seat with power lumbar support and a premium-leather bound steering wheel with reach and rake adjustment.

Dual zone air-conditioning allows driver and front passenger singly to control the temperature. Rear passengers also benefit from rear air vents.

INFOTAINMENT

High on the central dash is a 9-inch high-definition infotainment system, featuring voice recognition, in-built satellite navigation, DAB+ radio, and the latest in smartphone mirroring, with Android Auto and wireless Apple CarPlay. Occupants can take advantage of a premium eight-speaker surround sound system

ENGINES / TRANSMISSIONS

The LS-U+ is powered by Isuzu's 3.0-litre, turbo-diesel engine, developing 140 kW of power and 450 Nm of torque, mated with a six-speed automatic transmission.

SAFETY

In line with all MY22 D-Max models, the LS-U+

takes up a five-star ANCAP safety rating and comes standard with Isuzu's Intelligent Driver Assistance System, a suite of advanced driver safety and assistance technologies, including a state-of-the-art 3-D stereo camera that detects other motorists, pedestrians and cyclists. .

Standard with IDAS are autonomous emergency braking with turn assist, adaptive cruise control, traffic sign recognition, blind spot monitoring, rear cross-traffic alert, lane keep assist, plus eight airbags including a knee and centre-airbag.

DRIVING

Sharing its engine and chassis with the Mazda BT-50, there is considerable clatter from under the D-Max LS-U+ bonnet. There's little excuse these days for this amount of diesel rattle and here the motor shows its age.

The six-speed transmission handles most situations but can be a tad tardy in dropping down a cog under hard acceleration.

Isuzu claims a combined urban/ highway fuel consumption of 8.0 litres per 100 kilometres. The test LS-U+ used as much as 10 litres per 100 kilometres of diesel in city working and 6.6 litres per 100 kilometres on motorway cruising, so there's little to complain about here.

I am not alone in having a love-hate relationship with vehicle lane intervention. As part of the IDAS suite, the LS-U+ features the new Lane Support System switch, located on the steering wheel, allowing the driver to toggle all Lane Support Systems on or off, by a single push of the button for two seconds.

Going off road? Switch to Isuzu's Terrain Command 4x4 with 2-High, 4-High and 4-Low drive modes, an electromagnetic rear differential lock and ground clearance of 240 mm.

Measuring up among the best in the range, approach, departure and ramp-over angles weigh in at 30.5 deg, 19.0 deg and 23.8 deg, respectively. A water wading depth of up to 800 mm is also up there with the best in class.

With customer surveys detailing that close to half of all Isuzu owners tow with their vehicle, the D-Max LS-U+ has a 3.5 tonne braked towing capacity and is equipped with a factory-fitted tow bar receiver as standard.

Customers can thus tailor their vehicle to specific towing needs, with an optional seven or 12 pin plug, electronic brake controller, tow tongue insert with 50 mm ball and a weight distribution hitch. All are available through Isuzu Ute's Genuine Accessories catalogue.

SUMMARY

Isuzu's third-generation D-Max range has successfully muscled in on the highly competitive pick-up truck range in Australia with close to 22,000 examples sold in 2021. Proving popular among families, however, it's worth remembering tub capacity and versatility are seriously limited by the solid roller cover – a bit like comparing a briefcase to a travel trunk.

Blackbutt Show's back!

Blackbutt is gearing up for a grand return to the agricultural show scene this year.

Their annual show will be held on Saturday, 20 May, with a bit of fun also planned for Friday, 19 May.

Flooding in May 2022 meant the committee had to declare the main part of the 2022 Blackbutt Show rained out, but they went ahead with a modest display of pavilion entries.

This came after both the 2020 and 2021 Blackbutt Shows were cancelled due to the covid-19 pandemic - however, in 2021 a smaller affair featuring markets and a woodchop competition went ahead.

Therefore, the 2023 show will be a very welcome return for the Blackbutt community.

Circus tricks, motocross acts, a petting zoo and lazer skirmish are some of the fun lined-up, along with the sideshow alley classics.

Blackbutt Show is home to some major woodchop events, paying homage to the timber town's heritage. The show will host the Gred Head Memorial Standing Block competition as well as the Queensland Underhand Championships.

Blackbutt Show will again host the popular dog show, stud cattle, poultry and horse events.

The South Burnett town will also host the Cattle Sub Chamber Final for Young Judge, Handler and Parader on Saturday afternoon.

Blackbutt Show's program is as follows:

- 6-9pm: Open Mic Night, Bar and BBQ

Biggenden Show beckons

By Julian Lehnert

The Biggenden Show is right around the corner, and its many eager volunteers have just one goal in mind: to be the region's best country show.

Kicking off on Saturday, 20 May, the 123rd annual Biggenden Show boasts 14 sections of varied competition, both in the arena and the pavilion, plus a number of other fun events throughout the day.

Classic classes like horses, cattle and horticulture are joined by the rare but compelling poetry competition, a LEGO-building event, and a 'home manufacture' section set to feature the best jams, cakes and chutneys in the region.

Other stand-out events showgoers should not miss include the 'children's novelty races', the Biggenden favourite Lofty Wendt Memorial tug-of-war, and a scarecrow-making competition - all capped off by an evening of music and fireworks.

Biggenden Show Society president Glen Martin said he looks forward to seeing a healthy turnout for this special all-day event.

"We have one focus: (...) to deliver the best show in the region," Mr Martin said.

"I look forward to seeing all of the entries, be it a flower, pumpkin or a bull! The Show could not be what it is today without you, our competitors," he added.

"I hope you all enjoy the show and look forward to seeing you all there this year."

The sections on offer at this year's Biggenden Show:

- Section 1: Horse events and led classes
- Section 2: Poultry
- Section 3: Prime cattle
- Section 4: Stud cattle, Young Judges and Paraders
- Section 6: Dogs
- Section 7: Farm, Garden and Fruit

Fine wine the verdict: Burnett Vintage Report 2023

It's an exhilarating feeling as a wine producer to harvest fruit that you have spent the best part of the last 12 months cultivating.

The anxiety, worry and nervousness disappear and you look forward to the pleasures about to be created.

Vintage 2023 has been a fantastic outcome for the region's wine producers and winemakers.

When growing winegrapes in the South Burnett you enter into a fraught partnership with Mother Nature.

Sometimes she co-operates, other times she can be very difficult.

Either way, you still have to get your viticulture just right.

This season saw frequent rain events during flowering and fruit set which increased disease pressure at a crucial time.

If you controlled this period then you were beautifully set up for what was to come from December through to mid-March.

The drier-than-normal ripening conditions, combined with the cooler nights, lengthened the ripening season which created excellent varietal flavours, softer tannins and delightfully crisp acidity all beautifully balanced. It was almost a replica of the excellent drier vintages of 2005, 2006 and 2007.

Clovelly Estate's award-winning winemaker Nick Pesudovs commented it was fantastic.

"A fantastic vintage with some varietal standouts," Nick said.

"Verdelho continues to flourish and the Semillon was exceptional. Saperavi and Shiraz will produce amazing wines deep in colour and plentiful flavours.

"It was a season where both red and whites enjoyed ideal conditions."

South Burnett Wine Industry Association President, Simon Berry was also very upbeat in his assessment of Vintage '23 and thought it would have positive long-term implications for the region.

"Not only was fruit quality spot on, yields also increased," Simon said.

"We will now have top-quality wine in larger quantities. We have an excellent product with vibrant cellar doors.

"We need to keep reminding the wider public what a great area we have to visit, drop back a gear or two and totally relax and enjoy our food, wine and serenity."

A good vintage is the word.

Eidsvold's 2023 Junior Female Cattle section was well contested.

The 2023 Junior Champion Female was awarded to a young heifer called 'Santahat Tania' on Eidsvold's show day, 30 April.

Santahat Tania had already won the Class 129 to qualify for the champion position, which was sponsored by Greenup Eidsvold Station.

The Reserve Junior Champion Female, which was sponsored by James Sinclair, was awarded to Bullakeana Velvet who also won Class 130.

Racing in the bush

By Euan Morrisson

People came from all over to attend the 101st Annual Burrandowan Picnic Races on Saturday 6 May.

The day held five races, fashions on the field and live music for entertainment.

Rosanna Allan and Amy Fairbairn were two of the coordinators for fashions on the field.

They said the event was very well attended and they were looking for variety.

“We attract such a broad range of people from such a vast area of the state, so that’s essentially what we celebrate,” Rosanna said.

“Charismatic people, unique people and people who love to encapsulate what it means to be at country races.”

Rosanna said she felt being laid back is what encapsulated country races.

“We’re not Flemington, and we like that [was] represented in the people that are selected.”

The winners and runners-up of each category are as follows:

- Gentleman winner- Tony Jacobi, runner up- Matt Tanner.
- Couple winner- Leoni and Liam Moorshead, runner up- Barbarra and Thomas Thompson.
- Millinery winner- Amy Smoothy, Runner up- Sandra Heiner.
- Contemporary lady winner- Neva Eisenmenger, runner up- Toni Anne.
- Classic Lady winner- Verelle O’Shannessy, runner up- Brodie Millson.
- Lady of the Day- Leoni Moorshead.

The Fashions on the field organisers gave their thanks to all the volunteers and sponsors without which the event couldn’t go ahead.

Good times at the show

By Jessica McGrath

Mundubbera pulled out all the stops for their annual agricultural show last weekend.

The showgrounds were filled with festivities on 4, 5 and 6 May with events ranging from campdraft, dog show and the 'extreme horseman trial to stud cattle competitions, young farmer's challenge and sideshow alley fun.

The Brian King Memorial Rodeo was a highlight as well as the fireworks which were the grand finale for the Mundubbera Show.

The show took on a 'royal theme' to commemorate the King Charles of England's Coronation which happened the same weekend. There were royal-themed cakes and high tea themes across the show this year.

As for the grand champions of the show, Clint Whitaker with his stud, 'Mr Cruiser' won the 'Overall Outdoor Grand Champion'.

The 'Overall Indoor Grand Champion' was won by Brianna Whitaker with her beautiful champion Dahila flower.

Kingaroy shows off well

By Euan Morrisson

The Kingaroy Show was held over the weekend of 6 and 7 May.

The Kingaroy Showgrounds were packed with a great crowd of patronage who were keen to get amongst the heaps of great competition displays, eat some show food, ride some rides, and be entertained.

Margie Williams was steward of the fine arts competition.

Margie has been involved for 12 years and said this year had the most entries she had ever seen, numbering 271.

Margie said an interesting part about being a steward is listening to the judge of the pieces.

“It’s a bit of a learning curve for me as well,” Margie said.

“I’m a... beginning artist you might say, so I learn from their points.”

For Margie, the show is all about displaying the talents and skills that come out of the region.

“Lots of people think, ‘oh well my art’s not very good,’ but it’s all about showcasing what people do in their spare time and often those same people win a prize.”

Diane Woodall was the judge for the fine arts competitions.

Thelma Archibald won the Grand Champion prize for fine art with her depiction of a Kookaburra.

Some of the trots kept people entertained. 333831

Bill Cooper, Sarah hall, and Alistair hall gearing up for a big day at the show. 333831

Heather Kocsis and Priscilla Gauci of the Endeavour Foundation. 333831

Ruby Rose, Stephanie Simpson, and Lily Simpson were checking out the cattle. 333831

Pig racing gained lots of interest. 333831

Thrashers thrive at home

By Euan Morrisson

A great atmosphere and a great score for the Thrashers' first home game of the year.

The South Burnett Thrashers Rugby Union club played the Goondiwindi Emu's at Lyle Vidler Oval on Saturday 6 May.

The team also hosted an A-Grade game between the A-Grade Goondiwindi Emus and USQ.

President of the club Jamie Shirlaw was pleased with how the day went.

"The games were played in the right spirit and were a display of athleticism and good sportsmanship," Shirlaw stated.

Winning 41-7, the president said Gundy's defence was a lot better than the score would suggest.

"In the first half we attacked their line with a large amount of possession, but we were only able to cross once."

In the second half of the game, the Thrashers were able to make the most of some very physical ball runners such as Biss Waqatabu, Josaia Droka, Epa Turaganivalu and Elaijah Kocovanua.

This meant the team could put 34 unanswered points on the board.

"We are looking to capitalise on our momentum having played the top teams in the competition for the first round of games."

This weekend the Thrashers will be travelling to the Toowoomba Bears Rugby Union Club to play against the Bears.

The next home game will be on 24 June, with the Thrashers hosting their old boys' day.

Shirlaw passed on his thanks to the supporters, volunteers and sponsors who made the day possible.

It was a very physical game by the teams. 333745

Argent chops to the top

By Julian Lehnert

Blackbutt's Mitch Argent has done it again, taking home the Queensland combination woodchop title at last week's Kingaroy Show.

The 29-year-old pro from the South Burnett faced 5 other high-level timbersport athletes on Saturday, 6 May at the Kingaroy Showgrounds, with the aim to complete an underhand chop followed by a standing block as quickly as possible.

Tackling two blocks of tough but beautiful mahogany wood, Argent came out on top by mere seconds.

Argent's success at Kingaroy over the weekend comes just weeks after he won the 325 millimetre standing block Queensland title in his native Blackbutt.

All up, the South Burnett sensation has placed in over 80 Queensland titles, 15 Australian titles, and 8 international titles in his career, including a back-to-back-to-back win in the 15-inch standing block at the Sydney Royal Easter Show and a third-place finish at the 2018 Champion's Trophy in Marseille, France.

South Burnett councillor and avid woodchop enthusiast Gavin 'Spud' Jones interviewed Argent after his win at Kingaroy, praising the young gun for his national and international success.

"To win [the Australian title] once is one thing, but to win it three times in a row - there's only very few in the history of the sport who have ever managed that," Jones said of Argent.

U14 Chinchilla Bulldogs 34 def Nanango Stags 6

Nanango Stags: The Stags returned home for their first home game of the season this week. After an excellent first half the boys would go to the sheds trailing by just 6 points at halftime. Unfortunately, the second half would see Chinchilla run away with the game late. I was very proud of the boys efforts and improvements on the previous game. Rory O'Connor, Dante Tewes Reed and Jai O'Mahoney were very strong in defence and never gave up all day.

U14 Cherbourg Hornets 36 def Kingaroy Redants 16

Cherbourg Hornets: A good win for the Cherbourg Hornets this weekend, with both sides coming out and playing tough footy. Proud of the efforts of the Cherbourg boys this weekend.

U15 South Burnett Eagles 24 v Souths Tigers 24

Today the U15 Eagles travelled to Toowoomba to play the South's Tigers. It was another tough game ending in a 24 all draw. Eagles started well with a half time score of 20-8 over the Tigers but the Tigers came back early in the second half hitting the lead with 10mins to go. The Eagles dug in scoring a late try through Brayden Watcho-Page. The last 5 minutes of the game saw both teams giving it there all but the score remained tied up on 24 a piece. Outstanding players for South Burnett were Ryan Wallace, Kaiden Weston and Brayden Watcho-Page. The Eagles travel away again next week to meet Toowoomba Valleys which will no doubt be another cracker! Up The Mighty Eagles!!!!

U16 South Burnett Eagles 56 def Souths 4

This week seen the South Burnett Eagles U16 take on South's at Gold Park Toowoomba on Saturday afternoon. The game started as quite a battle amongst the forwards with some heavy hitting. The forwards laid the platform which allowed the backs to score some great tries on the edge, South Burnett went into half time 34-0. Second half saw South's rally and put together a better performance but South Burnett had too much pace wide eventually running out winners 56-4. Players player this week was Franky Bligh who was fantastic in defence and attack in the middle.

U35kg & U43kg Representative Teams

This week we held our U35kg & U43kg representative team trials and what a turnout it was! A big thankyou to all the parents and players who attended our afternoon - we have so much talent in the South Burnett. Congratulations to all of those lucky players who were selected.

Aussie softball success

By Jessica McGrath

Flynn Townsend dreams of playing for the Aussie Steelers one day.

However, the 13-year-old Mundubbera State College student has already played softball for Australia.

During the Easter school holidays from 5 to 10 April, Townsend headed over to New Zealand to play in a four-day carnival between Australia and New Zealand.

"It was pretty fun, it was a good experience," he said.

His under-14 Australian side won all of their pool games and finished up in fourth place overall. The other Australian team won the carnival.

"Catching against New Zealand [was a highlight]... I hit a few big hits," Townsend said.

In order to qualify for the Australian team, Townsend went to the Coral Coast trials and then the State Championships where the top 30 kids were taken to a training camp where they selected the final Australian squad.

The young players came from all around Australia so they had just the one training opportunity before they headed to the north island of New Zealand and explored the likes of Rotorua, Taupo and Auckland.

Although softball is Townsend's preferred sport, he has been curious about baseball and reckons being a professional baseball player in America could be a great career option one day.

Townsend also recently competed in the Queensland championships for baseball in mid-April.

He tried out for the under-14 baseball and made the Sunshine Coast squad -this was his first time playing baseball.

The Sunshine Coast team came third overall at the Baseball State Championships.

Townsend pitched well and got the MVP for one of the games for excellent fielding.

The promising young player likes to take on the roles of catcher and short-stop and first experienced softball at school trials and watching his sister play.

Every weekend he travels to Bundaberg to play for the Waves club which is also home to fellow North Burnett players from Mundubbera and Gayndah.

Townsend will play softball for the Queensland Country team which will play against NSW Country in the regionals competition in July, ACT.

Townsend's heroes behind his early softball success are his parents' support and his coach, Joy Macpherson from Eidsvold.

"She's shown me how to play from the start and she's still coaching me on new stuff."

Flynn's team, Sunshine Coast, came third at the U14 State Baseball Championships.
